

Missouri Election Expected To Indicate Control Of House

7 VACANCIES TO BE FILLED BEFORE NOV. 3

Democrats Have Hopes of Capturing Enough Votes to Gain Majority

Sealdia, Mo.—(P)— Voters of the Seventh Missouri Congressional district today were selecting from three candidates a successor to the late Representative Sam C. Major, Democrat, of Fayette, whose death made the special election necessary.

The candidates are Robert D. Johnson, Democrat, of Marshall; John W. Palmer, Republican, of Sealdia, and L. L. Collins, Independent of Springfield, who made the race on a platform calling for outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. Palmer and Johnson have the endorsement of the Missouri Anti-Saloon league and the W. C. T. U.

Washington — (P)— Missouri was the crystal ball into which Republican and Democratic chieftains looked today for an indication of which party will control the next house of congress.

As ballots were cast in the Seventh district of that state for a successor to the late Representative Samuel C. Major, Democrat, both national congressional committees awaited the outcome avidly. It was expected to indicate the trend of six other special elections to fill house vacancies, all of which have been held by the night of Nov. 3.

At present the Republicans have 214 seats, the Democrats 213 and the Farmer Labor party one. The last November elections gave the Republicans 213; the Democrats 216 and the Farmer Labor 1.

Democrats hope to retain the Seventh Missouri seat, regained by Major after two years of occupancy by John W. Palmer, Republican, and to capture the Fifth Ohio vacancy by the death of Nicholas Longworth, Republican nominee for speaker for his fourth term.

Although they have but little hope of taking the remaining five, they would tie the seats 217 to 217 if the First Ohio fell to the Democratic fold. With the assistance of Kvale, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, they would organize the house because it takes only a majority of one to do it. Kvale, however, has not indicated with which party he will vote.

The Democrats are reported unanimous for Representative Garner of Texas, their leader for the past two years, as nominee for speaker. Thus, they can present a united front to the Republicans on organization.

G. O. P. Must Caucus

The Republicans, "on the other hand, must caucus again to select a successor to Longworth. A number of their ranking members have been suggested, although Representative Tilson of Connecticut, floor leader for six years, and Representative Snell, chairman of the rules committee for the same period, have been pushed forward by different factions as outstanding candidates.

With Longworth, Snell and Tilson formed the triumvirate that controlled the party's legislative program. Independent Republicans from the northwest displayed dissatisfaction with this leadership last February when more than a dozen bolted the Republican caucus. Since then, it has been predicted by an independent spokesman that unless Snell or Tilson selected a running mate for floor leader that was acceptable to the progressives, a representative of that group would be nominated for speaker.

With the results of all the special elections are available, the independents are to gather in Washington about Nov. 15. They will decide then what course to take when the Republican caucus shortly before congress convenes Dec. 7.

In the meantime, a regular Republican group fearful of a Democratic house confronting the Hoover administration, has suggested a compromise slate. Representative Mapes of Michigan, a regular, was proposed as nominee for speaker.

M'KELLAR SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT FOR 1932

Tennessee Senator Backed in Home State but Indorses New Yorker

Rogersville, Tenn.—(P)— Senator Kenneth D. McKellar of Tennessee, was indorsed for the 1932 presidential nomination by state Democratic leaders here last night but announced he would support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, "a man who, if nominated, will be elected."

With McKellar as guest of honor, more than 700 Democrats from the Mississippi to the east Tennessee mountains gathered last night at the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, staged a barbecue and political festival.

After the gathering unanimously adopted resolutions commending McKellar to the national organization "as a candidate worthy and able to carry the Democratic party to victory in 1932" the senator presented the name Roosevelt.

"I am a sensible man," he said, "and I believe no southern man can be elected. I wish to take no steps which would jeopardize the chances of the Democratic party."

His presentation of the name of Roosevelt brought cheers from the crowd.

GIRLS' ASSOCIATION HOLDS HIKING PARTY

The Girls' Athletic association of Appleton high school went on their first hiking party last week to Green Patch. Committee members in charge of the outing were Ruth Weinkauff, Genevieve Morse and Josephine Freude for the entertainment; Lillian Oertel, Irene Williams, Helen Doerfler, Elleen Schomisch and Eldine Strutz for the food; Vera Jens, Marie Radtke and Gertrude Gelbke for clean-up.

and Representative Fear of Wisconsin, who was active in the La Follette progressive movement in 1924, was advanced for floor leadership.

Other speaker nominee possibilities have been suggested and several state delegations intend to wage a battle for one of their number at the Republican caucus. Included in those proposed are Representatives Luce of Massachusetts, Michener of Michigan, Ramseyer of Iowa, Hoch of Kansas, Barbour of California, Britten of Illinois, Darrov of Pennsylvania, and French of Idaho.

Until the house is organized, congress will be unable to do business. Twelve more in contests over the speakership, the house was two months in naming a speaker.

GOVERNMENT IS NOT AT FAULT IN DEPRESSION

Public Criticism Is Unfair, Assemblyman Schmiede Declares

Measures and problems which probably will confront the next session of the state legislature, and the history of the 1931 session with its sensational Blanchard filibuster, were outlined in an address by Assemblyman Oscar J. Schmiede at the bi-monthly dinner meeting of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce at Conway hotel Monday evening.

Proposals for study courses for junior chamber members, including a joint class in public speaking and parliamentary rules, were outlined in a short talk by Herb Keilg, director at Appleton vocational school. The junior chamber also made plans for a party at either Rainier or Terrace Gardens on Halloween night, Oct. 31. Reports of various committee heads also were read.

Discussing the economic depression, Assemblyman Schmiede spoke in defense of government, pointing out that public criticism is unfair, and that government is not responsible for present conditions.

"The depression has shown both the employer and employee that there should be some form of control, whether it be private or public," he said. "If the hours of labor were cut 25 per cent, the unemployment situation would be alleviated, and there would be work for the majority of the approximately 7,000,000 jobless people."

Hits Machine Age

Attacking the machine age, Mr. Schmiede placed part of the blame for the economic catastrophe on the hundreds of large machines running at top speed, throwing men out of work, and flooding the market with goods for which there is no demand.

"Although some may advocate state control of industries and their machines, it probably would place a state in a dangerous position of establishing competition with industry," he said.

He advocated centralized control through a national commission, which would start its work by reducing the hours of labor. He said every person would then be charged with responsibility, and everyone would be working in the interests of himself and others.

Citing the expression "the rich are getting richer and the poor, poorer," Mr. Schmiede advocated a greater distribution of wealth, declaring that $100,000 should be the maximum amount of inheritance. He said that a group of 250,000 people, or one four hundredth of the total population of the United States, pays 97 per cent of the income tax, proving that the wealth of the nation is centralized.

Lauds Pension Law

Lauding the old age pension law, he said the measure is the most humane issue ever enacted in the Wisconsin legislature.

"It costs less to take care of old people through old age pension than it does to send them to the poorhouse," he declared. "There are some who oppose the measure on the grounds that it is misused, but they do not know that this aid isn't given to everybody."

"If the aged couple has a little home, the judge in charge places the home in trust during the time the loan is in possession of the owner. At death the county is reimbursed."

with 4 per cent interest on its investment, and everyone is satisfied."

Declaring that the present prison system is wrong, Assemblyman Schmiede told the chamber that he recently learned from an officer at the Wisconsin state prison at Wausau that less than 10 per cent of the inmates are dangerous criminals. He said some inmates are serving terms for non-support and similar charges, which are not in the criminal class whatever.

The speaker said he is in favor of supervision of employment in the field of prison reform. He said many men who are confined to the prison were unable to support their families, but because they got into some difficulty after being paroled they were sent "up" for a term in a prison where they nurse a grudge against society and become hardened.

Public Utilities

Discussing the creation of a state power commission at the last session of the legislature, Mr. Schmiede said that Wisconsin is probably the only state in the entire United States which ever tackled such public utility measures.

"Passage of the bill gave the state the power to establish power districts which are strong enough to compete with private utilities. The measure eliminate the stifling of small public utilities by large private interests. In Canada rates are about half of those in the United States."

Branding the recent arrests of business and professional heads as unfair, the speaker lauded the repeal of the three-year income tax averaging. He said that in the cases of many of the arrests, which he believed were outrageous, business and professional leaders were unable to pay taxes because they had lost their fortunes in the market crash.

Mr. Schmiede said he believed that at the next session of the legislature some measures probably will be enacted, which will remove large oil trucks and similar vehicles from highways of the state. He said state highways were never intended to be railroad lines operated at the public's expense and endangering the lives of motorists.

Reviewing the various other measures enacted by the 1931 legislature, the speaker said that although many people are inclined to believe there are too many laws, they forget that laws must be passed in order to adapt the rules of society to changing conditions.

He also outlined the structure of state government pointing out that there are 33 members in the state senate and 100 in the assembly. He also outlined the various duties of the judiciary, executive and legislative bodies.

He told about the filibuster in the 1931 session in which Senator

Sleuth For 22 Years Loses Life Savings To Bunco Man

Los Angeles — (P)— For 22 years Anthony Connelly was a nemesis of crooks. A year ago he retired from the local police department as a lieutenant, put his life savings of $20,000 in a bank and departed for Ireland to visit his aged mother.

Today Connelly was without his $20,000—but he was on the trail of "his man" in Montreal, Canada, and he had taken a vow not to give up until he had brought to justice the man who duped him out of his savings.

The story of Connelly's misfortune was told by his former superior officers here today. Connelly met a man on a trans-Atlantic liner. Together they found a pocketbook containing several telegrams giving tips on horses. The purse belonged to a "betting commissioner" whom Connelly later was able to locate aboard ship. The so-called commissioner supplied them with tips on horse races which netted them money.

Then the three of them—Connelly, his companion and the "commissioner"—at the suggestion of the latter, decided they would make a killing

Ed Whealan, 329 N. Commercial-st, Menasha, was fined $1 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday afternoon when he pleaded guilty of jumping an arterial at the corner of College-ave and Law-st. He was arrested Sunday by Officers Earl Thomas and Alfred Gosh.

ASK POLICE TO LOOK FOR STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

Police are looking for a Buick touring car, 1923 model, which has been reported stolen from the parking grounds at Cinderella ball room, just south of Appleton on the Lakeland. The theft was committed Sunday night. The car is owned by Miles Jackson, 109 S. Doty-st, Neenah.

Blanchard took the floor at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the day of adjournment and spoke until midnight without stopping. Mr. Schmiede said he was sure there are many important issues killed because of the filibuster, and that it probably will be necessary to restore interest in the various measures before they are presented at the special session.

by each placing $20,000 on a certain horse. Connelly returned to Los Angeles, withdrew his savings and placed them with the "commissioner." He's still looking for him.

After several days in the local police record room, Connelly picked out a bunco man's picture as being the likeness of the man who took his money. The former lieutenant went to Montreal in an effort to bring the man to justice.

Urge Proper Program To Restore Wildfowl Life

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

Many thousands of wildfowl hunters in Wisconsin, and at least three millions in the United States, are much agitated right now over the waterfowl situation. The department of Agriculture recently slashed the coming shooting season to one month. They dictated what that month should be for Wisconsin.

but allowed Illinois to set their own time, which is in conformation with what has been allowed that state for many years.

It is claimed the shortage of ducks is the worst in years, and that it is due to drought on the breeding grounds of Canada and this country. Overdrainage will be listed in the Ketchum bill to come before Congress again next session as the underlying cause of the drought and the resulting scarcity of wildfowl.

Now it is proposed to ask Congress for a loan of $25,000,000, to be repaid by the sportsmen through a $1 federal license to hunt migratory game birds. It is estimated that the income from such licenses will amount to $3,000,000 annually.

This loan would be made available through the issuance of special bonds at the rate of $5,000,000 annually for five years, and would be used to get quick action under the machinery established by the Norbeck-Anderson Act of 1929. The present $8,000,000 ten-year Norbeck-Anderson refuge program authorized by Congress for appropriation out of public funds is considered grossly inadequate and entirely too slow.

They are right when they say that laws or no laws, rain or drought, migratory game will continue to disappear unless ample breeding, feeding and resting grounds can be maintained. And co-operation must be arranged for with Canada, from which at least 75 per cent of our wild ducks come.

Not Due Hunting
It is claimed that the steady decline of waterfowl to the present lowest point in history is not due to overshooting but to the vital, far-reaching misuse of our land and water resources. Personally, I am inclined to claim that shooting, which is carried on now by some 3,000,000 hunters in the United States has been considerable of a factor in the decimation of wild ducks and other migratory game birds. And I also claim that total prevention of all shooting is the only thing that will restore them to anywhere near their former numbers. I am not saying that I am for closing all shooting, but I do say that, like our brook trout, they never can be restored unless they are allowed to live and breed as nature intended them to do.

The proposition to buy up marginal and unwisely drained lands, and flooding them with water is a good move, in that it will take millions of acres out of competition with productive farm lands and help our drought-ridden farmer equally as much as the birds.

Investigators claim the present waterfowl crisis demands heroic and immediate measures. They say that restrictions upon shooting will always be necessary, but instead of more restrictions, more production must be brought about. Until nationwide and international producing machinery is put to work in a big way, we will never save our ducks.

Here is the $25,000,000 five-year waterfowl program proposed for the next Congress. It is divided into five clauses as follows:
(1) Restore and set aside ample breeding grounds.
(2) Adequate enforcement of protective measures against poachers.
(3) Greater protection of the breeding grounds against natural enemies.
(4) More waterfowl breeding by states and individuals.
(5) Negotiate a migratory bird treaty with Mexico.

Plan Inadequate
It is claimed the present $8,000,000 ten-year Norbeck-Anderson refuge program authorized by Congress in 1929 is grossly inadequate, and its fulfillment will be entirely too slow. The staff of federal game protectors is far too small to render effective service, and the states are not yet doing their full share to help.

It is obvious that Congress is not likely to appropriate more money than already authorized under the Norbeck-Anderson refuge program. Many feel that under present conditions Congress may be loath to appropriate the full amount authorized and that it will be difficult to obtain enough money to increase the force of federal game protectors to an adequate staff.

In 1925 an effort to finance a big national waterfowl program through a sales tax on arms and ammunition was bitterly opposed. Recent suggestions of a cent a shell on ammunition have met with the same determined opposition. Even though it might be an equitable method of collecting the necessary funds, the past attitude of Congress in the matter of sales taxes holds little or no hope for funds from that source.

One point in favor of the new proposed bill, as compared with the recent Wisconsin resident fishing license bill which Gov. LaFollette vetoed, is that it provides that not less than 70% of the income to this fund must be used to purchase, lease and administer breeding grounds and refuges, rather than to provide public shooting grounds whereon the birds could be shot.

That there are powerful and no doubt conscientious forces working to save our wildfowl no one will deny, but will someone kindly rise and explain how Illinois was allowed to change the president's recent proclamation to suit their own ideas, which means enable them to get the cream of the fall shooting, while Wisconsin is denied all consideration?

Prohibition Agents Hit County For Third Time In Three Weeks

GOLDEN SLIPPER INN RAIDED; 2 MEN ARE SEIZED

Get Quantity of Liquor at Roadhouse—Pair to Be Arraigned in Milwaukee

For the third time in as many weeks, a squad of federal prohibition agents descended on Outagamie county yesterday afternoon, and seized two men at the Golden Slipper Inn on Highway 10, west of Dale at the Waupaca-co line.

Last week a squad of agents arrested Nicholas Eckes, after raiding his soft drink parlor in Kimberly. He was bound over to the October term of federal court in Milwaukee for trial. This week before a large squad of agents struck in Appleton and vicinity, raided six places and arrested 11 people. One of these cases was dismissed while all the other defendants have been bound over to the federal court at Milwaukee for trial.

The two men arrested yesterday were Leo E. Coughlin and to be the proprietor and Edward McLaughlin, said to be the bartender. A quantity of wine, whiskey and beer, was seized.

Arraigned this afternoon before John F. Watermolen, N. S. court commissioner at Green Bay, they waived hearing and were bound over for trial at the next term of federal court at Milwaukee. They were released on $500 bonds each.

Another squad of agents yesterday raided a farm near Menominee Falls, Waukesha-co, and discovered two stills of 10 and 15-gallon capacity. Quantities of mash, whiskey and beer were destroyed and Vincent and Stella Galvani were arrested.

HEAR TESTIMONY IN ASSAULT CASE

First Case Still in Progress on Special Calendar of Circuit Court

A jury in circuit court this morning heard testimony in the case of the state versus Edward Gangel, town of Seymour, charged with assault and battery. Gangel was found guilty in municipal court last summer and he was fined $10 and costs of $8. He appealed the case to circuit court. The case opened yesterday afternoon before Judge Edgar V. Werner, the first of 15 jury cases on the calendar for the September term of circuit court.

The September term of court opened last Monday, but jury cases were not scheduled for trial until yesterday.

Gangel was arrested on complaint of Henry Ploger, also of the town of Seymour. Ploger charges Gangel struck his daughter, Esther, following a school district meeting at the Woodlawn rural school, town of Seymour, early last summer. The fracas occurred after the close of the school meeting.

The case is expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

Journal this afternoon after having set in motion a plan for an armaments truce beginning Nov. 1. The league council, however, remained in session to consider the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria.

The closing session was marked by an exchange of appeals that the powers use every means to make next February's disarmament conference a success, and the members congratulated themselves over the collaboration of the United States with the league's work at this session, expressing gratitude to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for his interest in the league's work for peace.

The move for an armaments truce, although it was less direct and concrete than some of the delegates had desired, was characterized as a valuable contribution to the success of the meeting next February.

Lord Cecil, for England, asserted that this session, which opened "with an expectation of barrenness has been one of our most fruitful meetings." Despite outside criticism, he said, the session showed the league at its best.

Representatives of several of the other nations echoed his sentiments.

What Has Been Done

In the three and a half weeks of the session the assembly recorded these accomplishments:

Received Mexico into the league and as a member of the assembly. Invited non-members, including the United States, to participate in its disarmament discussions. America, Brazil, Costa Rica, Egypt and Turkey accepted and participated in the league covenant and the Kellogg pact.

Concluded a convention for the protection of whales from indiscriminate slaughter.

Concluded a convention "for strengthening the means of preventing war," embodying a number of minor provisions for checking warlike aggression.

Authorized the European commission to continue its work for another year and to invite participation of non-European states in consideration of any problems of universal concern.

Discussed measures for relieving the world's economic difficulties and authorized further study of a number of proposals for rehabilitation of commerce, industry and finance.

Authorized a study of the economic non-aggression pact proposed by Soviet Russia.

SEEK INFORMATION ON POOR RELIEF

Want to Determine How Much Aid Will Be Needed in County

Town and village chairman of the county are asked by Mike Mack, Shiocton, chairman of the county board, to provide him with information relative to the amount of poor relief that might be necessary in their districts next winter. Mr. Mack sent out questionnaires which he is asking the officials to fill out and return. Data from these questionnaires will be compiled by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, and Mr. Mack and submitted to Governor Philip LaFollette. Only a few officials had returned the questionnaires up to Tuesday morning.

In their reports the town and village officers are asked to tell how many persons are out of work in their districts; estimate how many families are receiving aid at present; and what steps the town is taking to provide relief.

Many residents prefer to have receptacles carried away with the rubbish, while others have permanent rubbish receptacles which they wish to use each month.

Dr. D. S. Runnels is conducting the drive in approximately 70 stores and mills of the city and B. J. Rohan is soliciting funds in the various schools with the aid of principals and teachers. Dr. H. M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, is conducting the drive in the college.

NEARLY FORTY CITIES ABOVE MILLION MARK

Trend of Population Still Toward Urban Regions Throughout World

New York—(AP)—Nearly two score cities of the world now have a population of a million or more, it was revealed with the announcement that Mexico City had gone over the magic mark in its 1931 census by annexing its suburbs.

Another indication of the great trend of population to the cities and the tremendous rates of growth metropolitan centers have experienced was noted in the recent Moscow census which gave the capital of the Soviet republic 2,745,000 inhabitants, an increase of 85.5 per cent since 1926.

Even Leningrad, one time capital of the czars, which was understood to be slowly dying as the Soviet state neglected it in favor of the development of Moscow, was revealed as having jumped into the two million class, with a gain of 38 per cent in five years.

Most of the great cities of the earth have been counting heads in the last year and some startling figures have resulted. London counted 7,000,000, while New York reached 6,000,000. Chicago jumped into the three million class, Berlin just stopped short of 5,000,000, two additional American cities—Detroit and Los Angeles—counted above a million, while many others either added a million or made a flying start on an additional million.

Seven countries now have cities of more than a million. Technically China leads the list with seven, although a liberal interpretation places the United States first, with five cities directly credited with one million or more, and six others with a metropolitan population above a million.

Chinese and U. S. Cities

China's list includes Changsha, Foochow, Canton, Hangchow, Nanking, Peiping and Shanghai. American cities with a metropolitan population above a million include New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Boston, Cleveland, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and St. Louis. Boston, it might be noted, has recently been informed that the census bureau has established a metropolitan district with a total population of 2,307,897, of which, however, only 781,188 are within the city limits.

Germany, Russia, Japan, and India each have two cities of more than a million, while one each is claimed by Argentina, Egypt, Turkey, Canada, France, Brazil, Australia, Poland, Australia and Mexico.

The cities are Bombay, Calcutta, Berlin, Hamburg, Buenos Aires, Cairo, London, Glasgow, Istanbul, Leningrad, Moscow, Montreal, Osaka, Tokio, Paris, Rio, Sydney, Warsaw, Vienna and Mexico City.

At least ten more are likely to be added to the list as census returns continue to come in. Many cities, such as Birmingham and Liverpool in England, were just on the edge in the previous census.

ROWLAND NAMED FULL PROFESSOR

Appointment at Institute of Paper Chemistry Is Announced by Wriston

Dr. Ben W. Rowland, appointed last spring to the staff of the Institute of Paper Chemistry as research assistant and associate professor in colloid chemistry, is now full professor, according to Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college and director of the Institute.

Dr. Rowland came to the Institute last spring as a result of the establishment of a fellowship by the Stein-Hall organization. He was formerly director of research in colloid and physical chemistry for the Good-year Tire and Rubber Co.

During his graduate training at the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Rowland studied under Svedberg, of Upsalla, Sweden one of the most noted of colloid chemists. He has several patents in the field of rubber and has published widely in the field of colloid chemistry, evidence of the effectiveness of his research. Professional recognition has come to him through membership in the American Chemical Society, Sigma XI, and other professional and honorary groups.

The Stein-Hall organization is manufacturer and importer of starches, taploca, extrins, other carbohydrates and fibers.

MAKE GENERAL PLANS FOR FARM INSTITUTE

General plans for the farmers institute to be held in Hortonville this winter were discussed at a meeting of a committee of the Hortonville Commercial club in that village last night. The commercial club is sponsoring the event. Gus Sell, county agent, attended the meeting. The committee decided that it would like to have the following subjects discussed: Emergency hays and pastures; fertilizer tests conducted with grain and cabbage in Outagamie-co this year by the county agent's office; and what shall be fed to cattle this winter to fill out a ration of marsh hay.

TURKS HAVE GONE THROUGH CHANGES IN RECENT YEARS

Country Which Long Faced East, Now Looks to Western Leaders, Club Told

"Almost overnight, Turkey has turned from the east to the west, V. S. Varjabedian, an Armenian, told Appleton Lions club yesterday at Conway hotel. The country now has adopted many western ideas of government, dress and individual rights, especially concerning women.

Turkey is the cross roads of the world, the speaker said. He pointed out that the country marks the change from the western world and its ideas to the eastern world. It also is the central point for all world religions which seem to centralize in the single country and spread in all directions.

"Western countries always have had their eyes on Turkey, and for that reason the country became suspicious," he said. Great Britain, Germany and other European countries have been interested in Turkish politics, trade, and resources, and it took more than 100 years to make the people see the United States did not have the same selfish motives and wished only to erect schools and missions.

"Western ideas have so changed Turkey that the country, under Kemal Pasha, has adopted what is called a republican form of government. However, it actually is a dictatorship, for whenever the legislature considers something that Pasha does not approve, he puts on his military regalia and gloves at the legislators, who apparently take the hint and do as he says.

Women's Vells Lifted

"Among other things western ideas have done to lift the veil from faces of women, lift the tradition that has always clung to the fez, a tradition that made it an offense punishable by death to remove the fez while worshipping, introduce western style clothes, free women from old restrictions and permit more Turks to become educated."

Varjabedian was educated at Roberts' college an American supported institution. At that time there was one Turkish student there. Now there were one Turkish student. Now there were about 400.

Armenians are not massacred by the Turks, as in former years, the speaker said, but still are very much oppressed. Varjabedian related that he attempted to visit his father a short time ago, but that Turkish authorities refused to permit him to land. After others had interceded he was permitted to talk to his father for five minutes. He had not seen his parent in 30 years.

Varjabedian is a naturalized American and lectures throughout the country on the changes which have taken place in the east.

GIRLS' CHARGES BRING ARREST OF TWO YOUTHS

Pair Being Held in Calumet-co Jail on Statutory Charges

A Menasha youth, Robert Billington, 21, and a Stockbridge youth, Hoke Golden, 21, are being held in the Calumet-co jail at Chilton pending their arraignment in justice court there this afternoon on statutory charges. They were to be taken before Justice John R. Hume.

The two men arrested on complaint of two Oshkosh women, both 25 years old, who appeared at the Menasha police station shortly after 3 o'clock Monday morning and complained of being assaulted and held prisoners in a cottage near Waverly beach on Lake Winnebago since about 9 o'clock Sunday evening. The girls said the men threatened them with an ice pick and a knife and that one of the men said he had a gun, although the girls didn't see it.

When the men became intoxicated and fell asleep, the girls escaped about 3 o'clock, according to their story to District Attorney Edward S. Eick at Chilton. The girls were questioned by District Attorney Eick this morning, after which the warrants were issued. The pair has been held, however, since Monday when they were arrested.

The girls told the district attorney he said, that the men met them in Oshkosh and offered to take them for a ride. Instead, they were taken to the cottage, they said. The district attorney said the girls told him that they had all had "a little to drink."

Baby Falls Into Pond, Is Drowned

Escaping from a fenced yard in which he had been playing, Louis, Jr., 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller, Sr., route 2, Shiocton, fell into a small pond in the farm yard of the E. H. Vogel farm yesterday afternoon. The Millers live in a house near the Vogel farm, where Mr. Miller is employed. Mrs. Miller was at work in the garden when the child got out of its yard.

Alarmed when she noticed the baby was gone, she started a search and called for help when she was unable to find him. After a search of an hour the child's body was found by his father, submerged in the water. The body was taken to the Chino-Learman Funeral home at New London.

Besides the parents the child is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Selgworth, town of Royalton and Charles Miller, town of Liberty, and two half-brothers, Arthur and Howard Haire.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Emmanuel Lutheran church in New London, the Rev. Walter Fankow officiating.

THE SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army this week is making its annual appeal to the generosity of Appleton people for funds to carry on its work in this community for the next twelve months. The budget for the year is $6,500, of which a major portion will be used for providing relief and aiding the friendless.

Dedication of the Army's new home, the former Moose temple, was timed to officially open the 1931 financial campaign. It afforded an unusual opportunity to present the Army's program of service to the community.

No other organization in Appleton has attacked the problem of providing relief to the needy this winter with more energy than the Salvation Army has displayed. Early in the summer the Army's officers began laying their plans to meet what they believed would be the greatest emergency this community ever has faced, and preparations for the winter's work now are complete. All that is needed now is for the people of Appleton to contribute as liberally as the Salvation Army's program deserves.

In addition to the usual family relief work, the Army has made special arrangements to give temporary shelter to helpless transients. A large number of cots have been placed in the Army hall and a kitchen has been provided so that indigent travelers can be given a night's lodging and then go on their way with warm breakfasts and a word of encouragement.

In many ways the Salvation Army reaches people that no other organization can touch and these people often are in the most need of help. There are in Appleton, as in every other community in which the Army operates, men and women who today are self-supporting and self-respecting citizens solely because of the Army's beneficent influence. But for the peculiar genius of the Army in searching out these folks and its unique faculty of reaching into their souls many of these now worth-while and respected citizens would have been only human debris to be added to the community's problem.

The Salvation Army on its record here deserves support from Appleton people. It has done its work well and it is organized now to carry on more effectively than ever before. Supporters of the Army may be sure that the money they give will go a long way toward accomplishing the purpose for which it was given.

GAINS IN RUSSIA

Walter Duranty, correspondent of the New York Times who has been observing Russia for some time, now reports that the Soviet government has made marked progress in the past year. Industrial production, the financial situation, food conditions and public sentiment are all greatly improved. He gives four reasons for the change.

First, there is more food available, of greater variety and better quality. This leads to the second factor: public feeling is more cheerful. There is a growing feeling that the hardest point has already been passed and that the good things promised the people as a result of their almost superhuman efforts and tremendous sacrifices are within sight. Also the government has relaxed the pressure upon certain elements of society, making for better feeling generally.

The third reason for general improvement is the good start made in the coordination of labor between town and country, farms, and factories. Fourth, the Soviet Union is at last becoming unified, with less class struggle and rivalry.

Much as Americans dislike the Russian system, we have no particular quarrel with Russians as human beings. If they are really turning their business corner, we won't grudge them their good luck. And we can't help noticing that in so far as their Communist experiment does succeed, it seems to be through modification and compromise with the capitalistic principles that we ourselves believe in. Russian success along these lines may help, not hinder, world recovery.

TAX DEFLATION

Commodity prices, wages and salaries are in process of deflation. While these things are being deflated we believe it well for the public to turn its attention to the deflation of taxes. Hard times always put an added sting in the tax collector's business. No one really enjoys paying taxes of course. But it is only when a depression comes that the average citizen really puts his heart into his complaints.

In Ohio numbers of taxpayers are organizing formal associations in the hope that something can be done about tax relief. As the sponsor of one of these groups said: "When there are 10,000 of us in our organization, and tongues are wagging about us, then we can talk to them when they threaten foreclosure on our farms and homes because we can't pay our taxes."

That, of course, is true enough but to "talk to them" isn't quite enough, where taxes are concerned. That in fact has always been our chief trouble. We have talked and talked but we have done very little.

How are we going to reduce taxes—by cutting down expenditures? Fair enough; and how are you going to do that? Suppose it is municipal expenses you want to reduce. Where will you start? With the fire and police departments? With the school budget? With the park budget? With the street maintenance department? With the water department? With such service as garbage collection, building and electrical inspection?

There is hardly a city in the land where cuts would be made in any of those services without doing genuine harm. They are essentials, in most cases they need to be extended, not reduced.

What is the answer then? Must taxes go on increasing year after year in good times as well as bad? And they have tripled in some states in the last decade. Isn't there any hope for a reduction at all?

It isn't quite that bad. The average city can reduce its expenses without cutting down any of these essential services but every citizen will have to help and the job won't be an easy one.

Government is made expensive by politics. Politics as we practice it today inevitably means waste, inefficiency and, in some instances, graft. We put up with it because we are too shiftless and too prejudiced to create anything better or more practical; and as long as we do we shall be cursed by high taxes and extravagance. If the taxpayer wants relief, let him organize—not to "talk to them" but to put his governmental institutions on a sound and sensible basis. The deflation of our tax bills would lift a heavy burden off of industry, particularly during the present recession, and now should be a propitious time to make a start towards reducing expenses of government.

PROHIBITION AND CONGRESS

Dispatches from Washington indicate that a flood of "beer bills" will be offered in the house of representatives as soon as congress convenes in December. In the senate likewise there will be proposals of the same kind. All in all, a hectic session is in prospect, and the vets are reported to be nourishing fond hopes that one or another of their bills will actually go through.

Without in any way going into the merits, or otherwise, of plans to modify the prohibition law, it is a bit hard to see much reason to expect that the coming congress will enact any of these measures. Figures tabulated after the last election show a comfortable dry majority in each house. There would have to be a tremendous shift to give any modification bill even an outside chance of passage. However, there is every indication that the wet vote, although in the minority, will be the largest ever polled in congress. The action of the American Legion convention in requesting a referendum of the states on beer and light wines no doubt will be given some consideration but we do not expect it to influence the vote to such an extent that a majority could be polled by the wets. Some congressmen and senators are hoping that President Hoover will make some recommendations for a modification of the Volstead act to relieve the present economic situation. This is a vain hope as every indication is that the president will make no such recommendation but instead will devote his energies to relieving unemployment by other means.

MONDAY, good old Monday . . . there's one every week . . . one too many . . . and there have been no particular complaints about it in the column lately . . . but once in a while, the darned thing keeps popping up and is more disturbing than ever . . . by the time you get fully awake, however, Monday's usually nearly over . . . we're gonna get an electric alarm clock and hope a couple of fuses blow out late every Sunday night . . .

We Went to the Packer Game . . .

Maybe someday we'll be convinced that a professional football game is worth driving sixty miles to see, worth bumpers, fenders, worth a couple of ribs, worth driving miles in second gear.

Football is the greatest game in existence to watch. But you can't watch it when people are piled deep around the sidelines.

But the people at Green Bay are nice enough to put a public address system up around the field. If you get seats like we had, you get the impression of sitting in the bleachers listening to the radio.

The biggest excitement of the day was watching Bronko Nagurski get over a temporary paralysis of the legs. Somebody (the Bear's coach, we believe) was busily kicking Bronk on the soles of his shoes to revive his numbed legs. Then a knife was called for. Fans began to wonder if an emergency operation was going to be performed. No operation. The kicking went on. "Hey," somebody yelled, "try kicking him on the head."

TIME

Swiftly the summer flies,
Slowly the winter goes,
Sunshine and opal skies,
Song bird and rose,
Laughter and pleasures gay,
All haste away.
Snow drift and chilling blast
Long linger on the eaves,
Slowly the days drag past
Clouds frown upon.
Time seems a leaden thing,
Waiting for spring.
Where has the summer flown?
Sadly we sigh.
Where are the joys you've known?
Now care is nigh.
And when old age draws on,
Where has youth gone?

Personal Health Talks

Noted Physician and Author

PLANTAR WARTS ARE COMMON AMONG PEOPLE WHO NEVER PLANT ANYTHING

Ordinary warts, medically termed verrucae vulgaris, for no good reason at all that I can discover, are called plantar warts when they occur on the sole of the foot or perhaps between the toes. Plantaritis is a Latin word meaning the sole.

Plantar warts sometimes cause no particular complaint, but the majority cause symptoms ranging from discomfort or pain on walking to actual confinement in bed.

Drs. Earl D. Osborne and Edwin D. Putnam find X-ray treatment, applied with a very careful technique to protect every other portion of skin except the wart or warts, the most satisfactory way to deal with this troublesome condition. They say that calluses and corns are often mistaken for plantar warts especially painful corns or calluses in the space between the fourth and fifth toes, and X-ray treatment is not only useless in such cases but may make the patient extremely miserable. Soft corns or calluses in this situation are best treated by changing the type of footwear, spreading the toes with a soft cotton pad, and the nightly application of a mild salicylic ointment or the standard corn cure.

Salicylic acid . . . . .30 grains
Flexible collodion . . . . .1 ounce
This constitutes the standard corn cure and callus remedy. Paint a coat of it on the clean dry corn, wart or callus each evening for a week or ten days. Keep the vital tightly stoppered and keep the liquid off the neck of the wart, or you will have only a solid mass left when the ether and alcohol of the collodion have evaporated. When the corn or wart or callus is between the toes, it is essential to have the skin clean and dry and keep it dry, in order to get any benefit from the salicylated collodion, which will not adhere to the lesion if applied when the surface is moist or oily.

Osborne and Putnam treated 220 patients with plantar warts by means of X-ray, and cured 176 of them with one treatment, 17 with 2 treatments. In thirteen cases X-ray treatment failed, and these patients were later cured with electro-coagulation (diathermy). Altogether 39 patients were cured of plantar warts by electro-coagulation alone. These authorities conclude that it is unwise to give more than two X-ray treatments in such cases. Where there are very many warts, or where X-ray has already been used, it is better to resort to electro-coagulation or electro-coagulation (diathermy) or to surgical excision of both.

For warts on the hands, about the same procedures are advisable. Here I must warn readers against monkeying with warts or wartlike lesions about the face, head or neck. Such lesions deserve the best medical treatment, for two reasons. First, amateurish tinkering may produce ugly scars. Second, unnecessary irritation may cause cancer.

All warts are probably infectious—that is, caused by germs. Drs. Osborne and Putnam put the incubation period at from four to seven weeks.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Over Whooping-Cough
Is it all right for an 8 year old child who has just gotten over whooping-cough to go to bathing on the beach? (Mrs. J. V. Q.)

Answer—In my judgment a child of any age may go in swimming even before he is over whooping cough, with only benefit to his own health. Of course you must abide by the rules of the local health authorities about exposing other persons.

Calcium Lactate
I should like to try your calcium lactate treatment for hay fever (my attack comes in the last week of September each year), but first I should like to know if it will have had effect upon an expectant mother. (J. T. E.)

Answer—An expectant mother should try no treatment except by approval of her physician. The calcium lactate treatment is rather a preventive treatment. They say fever subject begins preferably a few weeks in advance of the season taking 10 grains of calcium lactate twice or thrice daily after meals in a glass of water and keeps it up for not less than eight or 10 weeks.

Poor Little Fellow

I have read of your cure for cockroaches and wonder if you will print it again. (A. G. G.)

Answer—I haven't printed it yet. But I do sympathize with the poor little fellow. What ails him? Bring him to my cockroach clinic. Or if there are a flock of him, send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for ridding your place from cockroaches. If you try to palm off a clipping in lieu of your own request, you'll be out of luck, for I cordially decline to read clippings of my own stuff.

Fighting the Battle With Tuberculosis
Please inform me how I can get the little book the man wrote about how he cured himself of tuberculosis. . . . (L. R.)

Answer—I know of no such book I would recommend. You may purchase for a nickel or maybe a dime a copy of Mr. Stocker's story "How I Won the Battle With Tuberculosis in My Own Home," or a copy of Fannie Benson Rogers, "If I Had Known in the Beginning What I Know Now," from the National Tuberculosis association, 450 Seventh-ave, New York. One of the first lessons you must learn if you hope to recover from tuberculosis is that you can't cure yourself, neither can you judge whether a given method of treatment, diet, climate, is advisable for your case.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only in queries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. ## The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE man who lugged the basket long upon his shoulders seemed real strong. "Where is he bound for?" Clowry said. "Perhaps he's bound for the back of the Travel Man. 'Each day he sells all that he can, and every house he comes to he is bound to make a stop.'"

"Oh, he's a huckster," Clowry said. "But I would think that he would ride upon a wagon. Then he wouldn't have to walk for days. Back and forth he carries his wares the live-long day. If he could see them, he would know how sensible they are."

Then Clowry cried, "Before he goes let's buy some fruit 'cause goodness knows, his oranges look real tasty. I'll just bet they're nice and sweet." "All right," replied the Travel Man. "I'll buy some oranges, if I can. It seems to me you Tynmites are always set to eat."

But ere they had a chance to buy another man came walking by. He had a funny looking cart. "Twice built just like a boat. They rushed up to the queer cart's side. 'What are you selling?' Carry cried. 'Fine ice cream cones,' the man said. 'They are cool upon your throat.'"

"Oh, goody, goody," cried the bunch. And then they had a happy lunch that they'd prefer the ice cream. So the orange man walked away. "Please make my cone a chocolate one," said Clowry. "Gee, this will be fun. I am so fond of ice cream I could eat cones all the day."

"Oh, no," exclaimed the Travel Man. "I fear you only think you can! One cone's enough for anyone, 'cause more might make you sick. Soon each one had a cone in hand and my, oh my, they tasted grand. The Travel Man said, 'Careful, boys, don't eat those cones too quick.'"

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — Constance Bennett, reputedly paid $30,000 a week to parade her glittering person across the screen, reveals that she has a heart of gold as well.

"How are things getting along over there?" I happened to ask her, upon her return from Europe. "Things are so tough over there. I saw old ladies laugh themselves into the aisles at 'East Lynne,' " was Connie's sympathetic reply.

Encores And Anchovies

Since Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, the toxicologist, asserted that alcohol oils up one's thinking, and that every one has at least a little of it on his brain, Donald Brian is inquiring how much longer we're going to stand for the expression, "dry wit."

This column's statisticians report that if all of the anchovies in New York were rolled out, end to end, Benjamin DeCasseres, one of the most ravenous of anchovy addicts, would be put to serious disadvantage.

Lupe Velez and her mandolin are inseparable traveling companions. Upon one of her arrivals in New York, the news picture men missed the instrument customarily in the left arm of the Hollywood flame, but they made no cracks.

Lupe thought of it later, however. The fancy instrument had been left in the sleeper in the confusion. Station attaches located it—the intrepid porter had lingered to pick out a tune before turning it in at the lost and found office.

Lupe got her mandolin back and the porter got a nice, masculine banjo from her.

Those fiascos in Great Neck, so touch they were musing in on one another's cats, now are branching out to the actors in the colony, says Whitney Bolton.

Strange But True

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, when a school girl in Krakow, Poland, once cleaned the monkey cages in a circus to earn a square meal.

Cool nights have brought relief to authorities in some of the Long Island sectors. No more nude bathing parties along the beach until next year.

You can buy all the raiment needed to fully clothe yourself from the pushcarts in the Ghetto—if the basement shop price wranglers don't grab you first and pull you under.

Several years ago, if we remember correctly, a Detroit paragrapher said that what this country needs is a suit of clothes composed of three pairs of pants and two coats. This year that might be extended to include an overcoat.

Gelatin is a mass of holes, says a scientist. That would be some consolation if they could get the holes to match your tie.

If you have always paid more — listen —

Men who try on these $5 hats without peeking at the price invariably expect us to say "seven" and this season so far we have sold dozens to men who never paid under ten dollars until we showed them how to kill two birds with one gold piece.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — It's difficult to tell at this date where the best "show" will be during the seventy-second congress—in the senate or in the house.

Those who frequent the galleries will have a hard time figuring out where to go. There'll be fireworks at both ends of the capitol what with the close division in both houses and the highly controversial issues on the program.

Heretofore their choice has been a comparatively easy one. The senate offered the chief attraction of "Uncle Joe" Cannon as speaker has the house bulked in the public eye to anything like the extent the senate continuously does.

The reason lay in the difference of rules governing each body. In the senate a member can start a verbal riot almost any time he chooses. In the house, a representative must obtain unanimous consent before doing such a thing.

House Needs Rules
As a result, nothing unexpected or thrilling was likely to happen in the house. Proceedings could be reasonably well forecast for any day.

Debate was carried on with time divided between the republicans and democrats, and applications for allotment of time had to be filed in advance by members wishing to speak.

Some sort of special rule machinery is necessary in the house. With a membership of 435, all of whom are potential speakers, a do-as-you-please method of procedure like that in the senate would probably bring disastrous results. Essential measures might never be passed.

But nevertheless, the public generally and the press flock to the senate when they want excitement. Most of the time house galleries sit and stare in bored fashion at what is going on down below. Only a half-dozen reporters or so many be observed in the space built to take care of one or two hundred.

It's different in the senate. Usually the galleries are filled. With something particularly interesting is being considered, the lines outside resemble the crowd at a movie palace.

House How Is News
Only the White House row and the section reserved for diplomats in the galleries are vacant as a regular thing.

It is remarkable how news of a flurry on the floor cratters over the capital. It travels in some mysterious fashion, and within a very short while the public galleries and press action are literally overflowing with people.

The house will probably get its share of the mob in the coming congress. There is a threatened liberation of rules. This added to the close division of membership, the speakership fight, et al, promises to draw 'em back.

Today's Anniversary

CAPTURE OF RAMADIE

On Sept. 29, 1917, the town of Ramadie, on the Euphrates river, in Mesopotamia, was captured by the Anglo-Indian army under Sir Stanley Maude.

The entire army of Ahmed Bey was captured. Capture of the town and the army was preceded by storming of Mushaid Ridge by Maude's superior artillery. His mobile cavalry likewise played a big part.

Ramadie is about 130 miles south and a little east of Mosul. Attacking the advanced positions on Mushaid Ridge at dawn of the day before, after a night march, Maude quickly secured the enemy, fought a severe battle during the day, carried the main positions, and then so disposed his troops that the enemy had no avenue of escape.

Critics said it was a fine, finished piece of work.

The earth opened the other day and swallowed a town in India. The same thing has been accomplished by shakedown politicians in this country.

LIONS' HEAD SPEAKS HERE FRIDAY NIGHT
Julien C. Hyer, Fort Worth, Tex., Will Visit Appleton Club

Julien C. Hyer, Fort Worth, Tex., president of Lions International, will be guest of Appleton club at a dinner Friday evening at Conway hotel, according to Lions officers. Lions from the entire northeastern section of the state are expected to attend.

Hyer will be in Wisconsin this weekend to attend a meeting of district club presidents and secretaries at Fond du Lac on Saturday.

Mr. Hyer was elected international president at the Toronto convention of Lions after having been first vice president in 1930, second vice president in 1929 and third vice president in 1928. His first connection with Lions International was as a director. He has been connected with Lions since 1919, serving as director, vice president and president of the Fort Worth club.

The new Lion's president was born at Greenville, S. C., attended several southern schools and graduated from Georgetown university law school, Washington, D. C., in 1916. He was admitted to the Texas bar in 1917.

In 1917 Hyer enlisted in the Texas National Guard, and served overseas with the 36th Division of the A. E. F. for a year, leaving the service as a captain of artillery.

He has served in the Texas senate, is commander of a Fort Worth Legion post and a member of several fraternal organizations.

Lion Hyer is noted for his wit and repartee and for his story telling. These qualities and his sincerity of purpose, have won for him a place on the programs of all Lion functions in which he has been able to participate, and are responsible for the many demands for his appearance at gatherings. There are 2,500 Lions clubs in the United States and Canada, with over 81,000 members.

Several other Lion officers are expected here with Mr. Hyer. Among them are Frank V. Birch, Milwaukee, an international director, and District Governor Lawson E. Lurvey, Fond du Lac.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "LIBRA"

If September 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3:10 p. m., and from 7:15 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger hours are from 10:20 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., and from 4 p. m. to 5:50 p. m.

Troubles and unsatisfactory influences overshadow September 30th—so the Stars say. Not only will complications arise in business, but troubles will arise in the family. Everything will seem to be at cross-purposes. Careful navigation will be needed to avoid major difficulties, and impulse should be curbed.

Children born on this September 30th will be free from the taint of deception. They will always be outspoken and truthful, even though the consequences to them may be anything but pleasant. They will, whilst actively interested in sports, study hard, be quick to learn, and excel. Their natures will be affectionate; their loyalty unquestioned.

Strong in your beliefs and convictions, you, if born on September 30th, are neither bigoted nor pig-headed. Always ready to listen to others and capable of judicial appraisal, you are not so cocksure of yourself as to hold to an opinion, just because you expressed it. This same spirit of adaptability to reason is also evident in the work you undertake. No matter how added you may be to certain ways of your own, you are always willing to junk them if a better method is shown you. This is not vacillation, but it is wisdom, and largely responsible for the success that generally crowns your efforts.

You are interested in a wide range of topics, and can talk instructively and entertainingly. In small talk, you do not shine. In matters of interest, however, you display exceptional knowledge, a retentive memory, and a lucidity of expression that comes very near to carrying conviction.

Your highly-developed sense of

New York—(C.P.A.)—When Max D. Steuer was a basting puller in an east sweat shop, a Czechoslovakian immigrant boy, it was said that he had the alertness of a chipmunk. He pulled more basting than any of his mates and progressed swiftly to lambasting—as a great criminal lawyer who can deal more misery to his opponents than any other barrister. Now, as special assistant district attorney, he begins the presentation of evidence before the grand jury having to do with the toleration will help you out in family life, and ensure you more happiness than that enjoyed by those who are custom and convention bound. closing of the bank of the United States, the most disastrous bank failure in American history, in view of the number of depositors.

Rarely is there a New York cause celebre in which Mr. Steuer does not appear. His once black hair now gray and thinning, his face cross-hatched with the lines of 5,300 law-suits, the fittest and busiest of American lawyers now earns around $1,000,000 a year. In its fourteenth-st floor, the tiger inclines a respectful ear to his lightest word. His is the stoutest legal lance which Tammany never commanded.

He is small, intent and tireless and employs finished acting and cold precision before the bar. Samuel Untermyer fished him in the fragment Stokes divorce case but the foils of countless adversaries have scarcely pinked him. His native village of Homono, Czechoslovakia, enjoys his largess. He is generous to charities.

Much wistful imagining will follow Eldridge Reeves Johnson to the South Seas. Today, his new $1,000,000 yacht, second only to J. P. Morgan's Corsair in magnificence, will be taken to Philadelphia to be readied for its voyage to Easter Island, 2,000 miles off the coast of Chile. There is evidence of a strange lost civilization there and Mr. Johnson with a scientist, will explore it.

Mr. Johnson founded the Victor Talking Machine Co. in his little machine shop in Camden, N. J., in 1901. In 1927 he sold control for $28,175,000. A later exchange of Victor and Radio shares showed that Mr. Johnson would have received $56,914,395, had he waited a while. He was not downhearted and has worried along with his handful of millions—buying the original manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland," Rembrandt's portrait of his mother and other famous paintings. He says he wants one of those 50-ton images on Easter Island and that he may have to send a freighter for it.

Mr. Johnson, earning an average of $2.50 a day in his machine shop, made a talking machine which squawked "Telegraph My Baby." He borrowed $5,000 and built a plant. It burned down and he borrowed more money and built another one. "My Word, How the Money Rolls In" sang all the phonographs. Mr. Johnson has a rare capacity for enjoying life, even with the thought of mugging that $58,000,000. He is the author of a book on tarpon fishing.

As British politicians take their corners for the coming election, worried observers are concentrating on a one-eyed but handsome young labor statesman who is rallying old-line socialists against the government. Herbert Morrison, former minister of transport, sees more with his one far-ranging cyclopean orb than most of his confederates do with two and he is a thorough modernist in his knowledge of the potency of publicity and organization.

His current speeches jolt London and command interest. It was he who dealt heavy blows to communism by his devastating ridicule. He assails the government, but bears a mediating note unlike the various brands of rattlesnake oil which have agitated Britannia the last few years. As minister of transport he used the office skillfully in advancing his own career and the government took him as a thorough-going pragmatist in politics. Starting life as an editor and boy, he became secretary of the London labor party.

Negro Population Shows Large Increase In Cities

Washington—(C.P.)—The changing racial complexion of cities of more than 100,000 population is reflected today by the census bureau. In all but Philadelphia, of the five cities having a million population, the Negro group had more than doubled in the past decade. In four cities the Negro population had increased by more than 200 per cent in 16 cities by more than 100 per cent.

The Indian was shown to have become far more settled. Chinese and Japanese groups displayed a steady growth in cities where they have sizeable colonies.

Mexicans, appeared for the first time as a distinctive classification, cities showing more than 10,000 of these being: Los Angeles, 97,116,

San Antonio 52,373; El Paso 53,291; Chicago 19,362; Houston 14,119.

In El Paso, the segregation of the Mexicans, hitherto lumped into the "white" classification, caused a 44.6 per cent decrease in the "white" column, although the city grew by 32.1 per cent.

Ten years ago, the Indian, true to his nomadic tradition, kept to the open spaces. Only eight cities in the list showed more than 100 Indians.

Now 23 cities have more than 100 Indians, and one city, Tulsa, has 1,817. Some are affluent from oil booms. There were but 211 Indians in Tulsa in 1920.

El Paso's Indian population, perhaps due to a more careful classification among Indians and Mexicans, dropped from 246 to 28.

The decade added but one city, Philadelphia, to the list of eight having more than 1,000 Chinese population. San Francisco's famed Chinatown flourished with 16,303 population as against 7,744 in 1920.

Though New York's Chinatown has been reported as moving from its old colorful center, Chinese in Manhattan borough increased from 2,587 to 6,288 and in New York from 3,042 to 8,411. Los Angeles tallied 3,609 Chinese in 1930 as against 2,063 in 1920. Boston had 1,595; Chicago 2,737; Oakland 3,013; Portland, Ore., 1,416; and Seattle 1,347; the last three named being decreases.

The same seven cities as in 1920 had more than 2,000 Japanese. They were Los Angeles 21,031, New York 2,256, Oakland 2,137, Portland 1,571, San Francisco 6,350, Seattle 1,145, and Tacoma 1,153.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

There is an old story that tells of a dog crossing a stream with his dinner in his mouth. Glancing down at the waters he saw the reflection of the meat he was carrying and it seemed so much larger and juicier than the portion he held that he dropped his dinner in an effort to get its shadow from the water.

Many Bridge players are like that. In the shadow of things that can never materialize, they lose sight of the substance that is within their grasp. Seeking immaterial tricks has cost many a game of Contract. The effort to get 2 tricks in an adverse suit when the 1 trick taken at the right time is all that is necessary and the sacrifice of the trick means only insurance that the necessary tricks will be counted, is all too general in Bridge circles. Take the hand below:

East and West vulnerable.
North and South not vulnerable.

A J 5 4 2

S 5 A Q J 10 9

1—Even vulnerable, North would be justified in overcalling with two diamonds. He has a fair six-card suit and more than 2 honor-tricks in the hand. If the bid serves no other purpose, North hopes it will prove an effective barrier to a possible no-trump game declaration by the adversaries.

2—East has a strong five card suit which cannot fail to be of benefit to the partnership. While his hand is very weak otherwise, it is too strong in playing-tricks not to warrant an overcall. The fact that he also has a negative support (three small cards) for his partner's Opening bid is further justification, if it were needed for his bid.

3—With his partner's bid and possible double stoppers in the diamond suit, as well as a double stopper in the club suit, West feels fully justified in going after game.

In the play, North's choice of an Opening lead is not an easy one. With such a holding, my own preference would be for a lead of one of the short suits if they had not been bid, but the lead of the spade up to the declared strength has nothing to recommend it and the lead of the club through East's bid would seem to be playing Declarer's game. Under the circumstances, North chose rightly his fourth best diamond and when the trump was exposed on the table, West realized that its only value was in the tricks procurable in the club suit, aside from the potential value of the heart Queen if the opponents led that suit. South played the heart and West here had to make the decision upon which rested either success or failure. Most players would hesitatingly play a diamond honor and then trust to luck that South did not again secure the lead in order to lead through the now defenseless diamond suit. Of course, such play is bad. It is worse than bad; it is silly. The proper play and the only one by which the contract can be won, as the cards are distributed, is to permit the diamond Ten to hold the trick. The count on 1 sure diamond trick, 3 spades, 1 heart and probably either 4 or 5 clubs, depending upon the location of the club King, if the diamond suit is not established before the club King is driven out of the hand of the adversaries, holding it. A "shadow" trick, which will probably never materialize, is certainly a small price to pay for safety.

In the actual play of this hand in a Duplicate game, only one player with West's cards realized the necessity of the hold-up. He permitted the king on 1 sure diamond trick, 3 spades, 1 heart and South, while realizing the probable utility of his course, had no choice but a continuance of his partner's suit. North could now see the situation was hopeless. He can establish the diamond, it is true, but the heart King affords the promise of entry early enough to prevent the making of game. The bidding clearly places the Ace of hearts in the West hand. North won the diamond return and cleared the suit. West then led a club taking finesse. South won, but his return of any card at this time was immaterial. West made 4 club tricks, 1 diamond, 1 heart and 3 spades for game. A game would not have been made had he attempted to make 2 tricks in his opponents' suit.

The course of all this is the same as that taught to the dog in the tale which begins this article.

TODAY'S POINT
When the opponent on the left of the player who has made a Takeout Double intervenes with a bid, the partner of the Declarer is released from the obligation to answer. Should he now make a bid it would show about the same strength required for a Jump Takeout of a Double, or not less than 1½ honor-tricks and a bid-dable suit.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and address him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a TWO-CENT STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Grant Child Time To Play After School

BY ANGELO PATRI
"Home so early? That's good. Now eat an apple, change your clothes and get right at your lessons."

"Oh mom! Gee! Give us a break. I've been in school since eight o'clock."

"Yes, yes, I know. Run ahead now. Eat your apple and change your clothes and get right to work. See how much you can have done by the time your father comes home."

"But I want to play. Gee, can't a fellow have any fun? What's the idea?"

"Now don't argue about it, George. You know the days are short and it's coming on time for the regents. Don't lose any time. Now go ahead and do as I tell you."

That sort of thing is what sends boys out of the house in a tearing rage, drives them into saying things they do not mean, sets them against their parents because they believe them to be drivers who have no understanding, no pity in their hearts.

Boys and girls who attend high school have a long day. It is no easy matter to sit hour after hour in school engaged with this and that and the other kind of book work. It is a strain on a growing body. Relief must be afforded or the child will break nervously.

After school is dismissed there ought to be a time of freedom from direction. The child ought to be allowed to choose his own recreation—when that can be done safely—and not be asked to work, to run errands, to continue the drive of the day. He needs rest.

The best way to do is to schedule the day so that a routine is established. This routine provides for the large units of work and play, the fixed hours for meals, and the like. It leaves considerable leeway in the use of free time before the evening meal.

How long should a child work at home work? That depends upon the child, upon the kind of the work, upon the daily schedule. The amount of time spent upon homework should be the time as adjusted to the needs of the child. There is no sense in asking a whole class to do the same work every evening—some need that

The dinner marks the opening of the drive. Mrs. Werner is the president of the Woman's club, Mrs. E. W. Cooney is the vice president.

Council Of Church Will Hold Picnic

THE Men's Council of First Baptist church will hold its first fall meeting at 7:30 Tuesday night at the church. Routine business will be discussed, after which an indoor picnic will be held. The Rev. Ernest Hasselblad will have charge of entertainment and lunch will be served. The picnic of the council scheduled for last Saturday afternoon was postponed because of the weather.

point, some need another. All do not need the same lesson, nor do they need to spend the same amount of time upon it. It is certainly not good management that requires an "A" student in English to do twenty-five sentences according to the analysis scheme. Some children need less lesson. It is more than likely that the "A" child does not. He needs something else. Each should have his own.

But what I am anxious about is that each child have time out to rest. Time out to remove the taste of the dry atmosphere of the classroom out of his mouth. Time out to readjust himself to the outside world. Time to stretch and laugh and put his body into a state of ease that will allow work later in the day. Time out to allow his mind to broaden its horizon, after a day within books. Playtime must be respected.

Mr. Pait will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

"Eczema broke out in a small place near my elbow. It began itching and continued so for months, and the more I scratched the worse it itched. The skin was rough and when I scratched scales used to fall off. Then a few years ago a place on the calf of my leg began to itch the same way, and a little later the same trouble appeared on my hip. "I sent for free samples of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me. I purchased more and in about six weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. J. W. Sutton, 1124 H Street, Lincoln, Neb.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE night Sue talked to California and then to Judge Thornton, she went over the whole case of Jack's illness very thoroughly. She might have been a lawyer summing up her evidence.

Jack had tried to call her to tell her something. A storm had disconnected them. Her letters were returning unanswered. Jack had disappeared. But his father knew where he was and showed no signs of worry. Why hadn't Jack told her, too? Or didn't she mean as much to him as she used to mean?

One worry was removed. Jack apparently was not in danger.

"You might as well face the issue squarely, Sue Merryman," said the lawyer. "Whatever has happened wasn't your fault. And Jack would do the chivalrous thing. He wouldn't walk out on you like this. There is some reason back of this. You should be willing to trust him. Everything is all right."

But her lips curved into a crooked smile. "But just the same he didn't get in touch with you. And if he loved you enough he would have if he could have. And that is that!"

But her thoughts spun on, like an animated merry-go-round. Round and round and round. Then up and down like a see-saw. Almost as though she blew a dandelion pod in the old game and counted the seeds. "He loves me—he loves me not."

Finally she decided that Jack's interrupted telephone call ought to be proof enough that he had wanted to let her know.

"But the trouble with a girl is that she always goes on hoping, believing, trusting when it would be better for her to snap out of it," she finished the thought.

Because she craved action she decided that the next night she would examine the antique desk at the home of the man who had a will for which others were searching in California. She went to the house, a veil over her hat, and asked to look at the desk. She pretended that a friend of hers had heard indirectly about it, and had sent her.

The woman was delighted to have a possible customer. Sue's ejaculations and comments kept up a running fire of appreciation.

"Does it have a secret drawer?" she asked at last.

Some place, but I don't know where. I'm not interested in such contraptions. I want things in plain sight where I can see them. I'd like to sell this dust collector and get a desk that works right. But my husband takes a sort of pride in it. But I've been saying that I'd get rid of it."

Sue's hands were working among the drawers. Not industriously, in a careless, adventuring fashion. She was trying to remember the various things that she had memorized from the study of the old desks in second-hand shops and wondering if her memory was going to fail her just when she needed it.

The telephone rang. Sue started. The woman excused herself. To Sue it was like a melodrama. Telephones never rang in the right place except on the stage. And here was a bell chiming right in the next room.

As soon as the woman was out of sight Sue's hands and brain went to work. She believed she knew. A twist here. A turn there. And one more push to the left....

SALLOW SKIN IS ALTERED BY GOOD EXERCISE

by ALICIA HART

Sallow skin is often caused from fussing, worrying, and getting nervous. Get eight hours sleep every night and if you are tired after lunch, take a nap. Those are your first two steps toward making your skin firm, clear and white.

Relax whenever you can and drink at least ten glasses of water each day. Insufficient elimination is another cause of yellow skin. Drink two glasses of water the first thing in the morning and then do this exercise. Lie flat on your back and draw your knees up to your stomach as far as you can. Now kick them back with a slow rhythmic movement, drawing the abdomen in, up and then out. Do it 30 times. If you have a stubborn case of constipation, consult a doctor.

Drink the juice of two oranges each morning, twenty minutes before you eat breakfast. Eat whole-wheat and coarse brown breads. Raw carrots are excellent for your complexion. So is spinach which which has not been overcooked. Don't take harsh cathartics unless they have been advised by your physician. Bran in your cereal and plenty of exercise is better for you.

Walking in the sunshine is splendid exercise for a person with a tired yellow skin. But walk with a brisk energetic stride, and smile. Breathe deeply until you have the feeling that each breath fills your whole body instead of merely your lungs.

Eat less of everything, particularly sweets. Sallow skin comes from within your body and you must make yourself healthy inside before you can hope to attain a growing complexion. You must drink more water and you must get plenty of exercise.

While you are taking your beauty treatments internally, you might use a bleaching cream on your face and neck. There are any number of good ones on the market and then too, you can always use lemon juice or buttermilk. A skin tonic is also beneficial. Use it a couple of times a day. But put rather than rub it on. Just remember that sallow skin is never a permanent thing and if you take good care of your body, your complexion will soon be white instead of yellow.

ITALIANS BEMOAN AMERICAN ECONOMY

Rome —(AP)— Hotel keepers, tourist agents and others who depend on an annual influx of foreigners for their living, are slogging deep indigo blues this year. Business, they say, is terrible.

Americans, who with Germans are the stock in trade of Italians, are fairly numerous, but they are not spending any money.

The cashier of one travel agency which caters almost exclusively to Americans tells this one:

"An American woman asked me how to go from the Piazza di Spagna to the Piazza del Popolo. I told her to take a bus but when she learned the fare was 75 centimes (about 23 cents) she asked if there was any cheaper way."

Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 39-inch with 1 1/2 yards lace.

You'll be amazed at how easily it is to fashion it.

It's delightfully lovely in black crepe satin with white crepe satin trim, wine-red canton-faille and purple crepe marocain.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

JEALOUSY—OBSESSION WILL RUIN LOVE—STIFLE SUSPICIONS OF MISTRUST

Dear Miss Vane: I am married to a man whom I love more than anything in the world. For the past three years I have been jealous of him although I have no actual cause. I am constantly noticing little things and suspecting him of cheating. He denies everything and says he loves me better than any other woman in the world. But whenever I hear him mention another woman, a cloud settles down on my mind and all my happiness is gone. I am so wretched about this, because it makes us quarrel all the time. Yet, I think I must have some deep hidden reason for my suspicions.

JUST A READER.

I should doubt very much whether you had a real reason for your suspicions at all. You've merely allowed this jealousy thing to become an obsession with you, and as the obsession has grown stronger you've convinced yourself that it is caused by a real hunch, a secret knowledge that your husband is indeed unfaithful to you.

Well it may cheer you up to know that a hundred other women have had your conviction. Have acted on it—have gone around like amateur female detectives, spying on their husbands' every move—and have succeeded in wrecking a love which they desired more than anything else to keep alive and whole.

Believe me if you look everywhere for trouble, you will find it everywhere—in the most ridiculous insignificant little thing. I could tell you a hundred incidents of misplaced suspicion which led to serious results. If a woman once begins to believe that her man is cheating she will find a dozen proofs of his infidelity in everything he does and says.

Now you admit yourself, Reader that there is no real cause. Your husband acts as though he loved you presumably, or that would be your first cause of complaint. He tells you that you're the only woman in his life. And you've got to believe it. You just tell yourself that for your own sake and his, you've got to hang on to yourself. Every time an ugly suspicion, or a worrying thought pops up in your mind, silence it. Remind yourself that in order to save your domestic happiness you must create TRUST in your heart, just as you have created jealousy before.

Half the trouble is, you know that while you're trying to adjust yourself to believing your husband, you're afraid that you're being made a fool of. Old Man Vanity comes along and whispers to you: "How do I know that I'm not just shutting my eyes to the truth? How do I know that other people are not laughing at me?" Well tell O. M. V. to keep quiet. Tell him that if your husband is grossly unfaithful to you, he can't keep it from you forever.

And in the meantime from your husband's actions, from what he says, from the absence of all evidence to the contrary, you're impelled to have real trust in him. Tell O. M. V. that story and silence him. You must do this, because you cannot have any happiness with this weight on your mind. You cannot expect to keep any man happy and contented if you plague him with endless questions and subject him to cross-examinations at every turn of the way.

You're probably suffering from hallucination and nothing else. So set to work to get your mind straight, just as if you were a mental doctor. Stop feeling that PERHAPS you're being deceived, and tell yourself that you're absolutely sure of your husband's love because only in that deep certainty can you find real peace and real love.

X. X.: Thanks for your letter but why not write more clearly about your problem? You need not be ashamed of its seeming insignificance. It is important to you, and because of that, it deserves consideration. Glad to help you if I can.

MALOUF SETS PACE IN SCRATCH BOWLING LOOP

Menasha—Scoring a 635 series with single game counts of 190, 246, and 189, Michael Malouf was pace setter on the opening night of the major scratch league bowling on Hendy alleys Monday evening. Malouf's team took two out of three games from the Fankratz fuel trio.

The scratch league, recently organized in Menasha, includes eight three man teams. Only four bowlers failed to appear for the opening night's competition.

W. Ryan of the Shamrocks scored the only other 600 series of the evening, chalking up 170, 200, and 233 single game counts for a 603 total. His team won three straight games from the Rulish, Rippl, and Mayew trio.

After dropping the first game by 21 pins, Walley's Taps rallied to win two tilts from the Hendy trio. The Blue Bills defeated the Koney Crack Shots in two out of three encounters.

WOULD FURNISH ROAD MEN WITH FIRE EQUIPMENT

Practice Might Reduce Cost of Suppression, Immell Points Out

Madison—(P)—As a means of reducing the cost of forest fire suppression, Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell today requested all county chairmen to do what they can toward supplying approximately 1700 highway patrolmen in the areas with fire fighting equipment.

It will come about $7 to furnish every patrolman with a back pump, ax, shovel and a maul and that investment might readily avert the expenditure of many thousands of dollars occasioned by a single fire, Gen. Immell said.

The adjutant general, as a member of the state conservation commission, is in charge of forest protection.

He suggested that the county chairmen stimulate local interest to raise the $7 required for equipping each patrolman operating within the respective counties.

If the plan is universally successful, he said, the 1700 highway employees, working on regularly established road divisions in the state and county systems would form a human network to assist in suppressing fires throughout the affected areas.

To add force to his argument the adjutant general informed the county chairmen that the labor costs of fire suppression in the "forest counties" during the fiscal year 1930-31 was $215,580.69.

"One half of this cost is borne by the county directly and the other half is paid by the state, or indirectly by the people of the counties," he said. "The point is made that while fire prevention is not definitely fixed as a county responsibility the joint financial responsibility makes it of paramount interest to the counties that the fire hazard be adequately controlled."

Gen. Immell prepared a table showing the cost of putting down fires by the individual counties. The table follows:

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

Plans for enlisting the highway patrolmen among the forces of fire fighters, in such a way as not to interfere with their regular duties were announced by Adjutant Gen. Immell and R. B. Goodman of Marinette, another member of the commission at the same time that it was proposed to secure the American Legion's cooperation. The Legion, so far, has organized 10 posts into fire fighting groups so as to make it unnecessary to hire itinerant and irresponsible workers in cases of emergency.

STATE HOTEL MEN MEET THIS WEEK

John Brill, Charles Emden Plan to Attend Milwaukee Gathering

John Brill of Hotel Northern and Charles Emden of Conway hotel plan to attend the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Hotel association in Milwaukee Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The association may decide, at its Thursday afternoon meeting, to sponsor a movement for the organization of a state-wide advertising program for Wisconsin. The report of a special committee which has been working on the matter will point out the fact that the state of Michigan has been appropriating the sum of $100,000 annually during the past four years to match a similar amount raised by four active tourist associations which are engaged in promoting Michigan's tourist and vacation attractions; that Minnesota is appropriating an amount of $37,500 annually which is turned over to the Ten Thousand Lakes association of that state and added to privately raised funds which permit Minnesota to spend in the neighborhood of $100,000 annually to bring tourists to that state. Practically nothing has been spent during the past several years

IOWA GOVERNOR SEEKS CREDIT FOR FARMERS

Chicago—(P)—Gov. Dan Turner was here today to confer with J. B. McDougall, governor of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, in the interests of cheaper credit for farmers desiring to hold their corn until a 60 cent price level is reached.

The Iowa executive hoped also to talk with Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois and had invited other governors in the corn belt states to join in the corn price movement.

Governor Turner and a committee of Iowa agricultural leaders were in Washington last week where they conferred with members of the farm board. The farm board, however, rejected Turner's grain storing proposal and offered a counter-plan.

The details of the counter-plan have not been disclosed but Gov. Turner expressed the opinion that it would not offer relief quickly enough to meet the present situation.

to advertise Wisconsin as a tourist state.

The report predicts that the general return of prosperity will see a tremendous rush of tourists and vacationists to the Great Lakes region and declares that Wisconsin will be at a serious disadvantage unless she quickly gets in line with Michigan and Minnesota on advertising.

The exposition will be opened at the Hotel Pfister on Oct. 1, by L. P. Daniels, Wisconsin Rapids, president of the association and will conclude with a golf tournament at the Lynx Golf club on the afternoon of Oct. 3.

New York—(CPA)—Somebody has been posing as Ernest Hemingway in New York and Europe and the real Ernest Hemingway is coming back to New York from Paris to look for him. He arrives Tuesday on the liner Ile de France. There is going to be serious trouble when they meet, unless the spurious Hemingway weighs more than 200 pounds.

The real Hemingway, the author of "The Sun Also Rises," "A Farewell to Arms," and "In Our Time," learned about his double just before he left Paris a week ago. According to a Paris dispatch received today, he received a telephone call at his hotel.

"Hello, Ernest. This is Lewin."

"Who?"

"Lewin. You remember me."

"Never heard of you."

"Sure you have. You been to my flat in New York. You gave me autographed first editions of your books. Remember?"

"Say, maybe I've got a bad memory. Come around to my hotel and when I see you I'll remember."

Explanation Needed

In half an hour Mr. Lewin appeared.

"You're not Hemingway," said Lewin.

"Neither are you," said Hemingway. "I never gave you my books."

"Listen," said Lewin. "I met Ernest Hemingway on the Roma, out of Genoa last Dec. 2. You can check on that."

"All right; you can check this, too," Hemingway produced his passport that proved he was Ernest Hemingway and showed no visa to indicate he had been in Genoa last December.

"That's funny," said Lewin. "That picture don't look like him."

"Now, this fellow Hemingway I met on the Roma had a lot of manuscripts. He told me personally he was going to print them in a book, and he was going to call it 'In Our Time.' Maybe it's out now. Have you read it?"

"No," said Hemingway. "I wrote it. It was published six years ago."

"That's funny," said Lewin. "He told me he wrote it himself."

Hemingway plans to stay in New York long enough to track down the usurper of his name, who is said to claim his father was an American admiral. Hemingway's father was a doctor.

Naturally, the furniture makers attempted to follow very closely the styles brought from home. "Listen," said Lewin. "I met Ernest Hemingway on the Roma, out of Genoa last Dec. 2. You can check on that."

"All right; you can check this, too," Hemingway produced his passport that proved he was Ernest Hemingway and showed no visa to indicate he had been in Genoa last December.

"That's funny," said Lewin. "That picture don't look like him."

"Now, this fellow Hemingway I met on the Roma had a lot of manuscripts. He told me personally he was going to print them in a book, and he was going to call it 'In Our Time.' Maybe it's out now. Have you read it?"

"No," said Hemingway. "I wrote it. It was published six years ago."

"That's funny," said Lewin. "He told me he wrote it himself."

Hemingway plans to stay in New York long enough to track down the usurper of his name, who is said to claim his father was an American admiral. Hemingway's father was a doctor.

"EARLY AMERICAN"

Many persons confuse the terms "Early American" and "Colonial" in thinking of the furniture styles during the early days of the country. Possibly there is a reason, but it is to be remembered that Europeans began to settle America as early as the first part of the 17th century.

In the north, furniture was brought over on practically every ship, and so there was in the country a varied assortment of English, French and Dutch styles and designs. Naturally, the furniture makers attempted to follow very closely the styles brought from home. Slight alterations in designs were made and with simplicity the keynote, a new furniture period matured.

Sez Hugh: Hemingway Goes After Usurper Of His Name

BY HARVEY ANDERSON

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent

New York—(CPA)—Somebody has been posing as Ernest Hemingway in New York and Europe and the real Ernest Hemingway is coming back to New York from Paris to look for him. He arrives Tuesday on the liner Ile de France. There is going to be serious trouble when they meet, unless the spurious Hemingway weighs more than 200 pounds.

The real Hemingway, the author of "The Sun Also Rises," "A Farewell to Arms," and "In Our Time," learned about his double just before he left Paris a week ago. According to a Paris dispatch received today, he received a telephone call at his hotel.

"Hello, Ernest. This is Lewin."

"Who?"

"Lewin. You remember me."

"Never heard of you."

"Sure you have. You been to my flat in New York. You gave me autographed first editions of your books. Remember?"

"Say, maybe I've got a bad memory. Come around to my hotel and when I see you I'll remember."

Explanation Needed

In half an hour Mr. Lewin appeared.

"You're not Hemingway," said Lewin.

"Neither are you," said Hemingway. "I never gave you my books."

"Listen," said Lewin. "I met Ernest Hemingway on the Roma, out of Genoa last Dec. 2. You can check on that."

"All right; you can check this, too," Hemingway produced his passport that proved he was Ernest Hemingway and showed no visa to indicate he had been in Genoa last December.

"Now, this fellow Hemingway I met on the Roma had a lot of manuscripts. He told me personally he was going to print them in a book, and he was going to call it 'In Our Time.' Maybe it's out now. Have you read it?"

FRANCE AND U. S. MAY ESTABLISH ECONOMIC BODY

Committee Could Help Solve Many Issues of Interest to Two Nations

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1931 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington — (CPA)—Diplomacy may give way to economic collaboration. If France and Germany can set up an economic committee as a result of the visit of Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand to the Berlin government this week, there is a possibility that such a step may be seriously considered as between the United States and France.

For several months now it has been recognized here that the possession of more than 60 per cent of the world's gold supply by both France and the United States gives rise to problems never before experienced by either country. Under such circumstances constant conference becomes necessary. During the war, a French economic mission came to Washington and transacted most of the business of the French government relating to loans and purchases. The stabilization of exchange was a paramount question. Then, after the war, the French government, while financial and business men handled those affairs.

While Paul Claudel, French ambassador here, is an accomplished scholar and is noted for his poetry and literary achievements, he is lacking in business background and speaks very little English. He has a financial attaché, but during the war it was found that only foreign representatives of a rank equal to an ambassador were able to command the attention necessary in the negotiation of large business questions.

May Meet in U. S.
The United States government would not, of course, suggest the establishment of an economic mission for France or any other country. If the American government wishes to take up anything with the French government it sends its messages through Ambassador Walter Edge in Paris. During the recent negotiations over the moratorium, Mr. Edge had at his side Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of State Stimson.

It is in New York and Washington, however, where the conferences of the next few months are likely to take place. Officials of the Bank of France have been in touch frequently with the Federal Reserve bank in New York with reference to gold movements, but if there are international policies to be worked out between France and the United States affecting exchange, a permanent Franco-American committee may have to be set up in the United States to care for the many complicated questions that naturally will arise.

Would Help Business
After Premier Laval visits President Hoover it may be determined by the French government to suggest such a committee, though it is recognized that the opinion of the Washington government would have to be sought as to the advisability of such a step. Certainly the presence in the United States of a group of prominent French business men would add to the opportunity for better understanding of French and American mutualities of interest. It is believed that had a French economic mission or committee been in existence here when the moratorium was first suggested by President Hoover, there might have been less delay in persuading the French government to concur in the Hoover program.

Before many months it would not be surprising to find other countries sending economic missions to the United States to secure American collaboration. General international conferences on economic questions have not been held since the war by the American government but consultations with individual countries may become the rule rather than the exception.

Just as he got there he leaped into the air and started to dance himself. He had run into a score of angry bees.

Iris Should Be Planted Now To Get Best Results

Fall is the best season to plant iris, and the earlier they are set out the more quickly they will become an established part of the garden. Plants set out in fall get an early start in spring and insure flower development the first year.

Perhaps no other flowering plant requires as little care as the iris in order to produce its wealth of lovely flowers. As with all other plants, however, it is most lavish with bloom when given proper soil, feeding and maintenance.

In preparing the iris bed, dig it deeply and see that the soil is finely pulverized. For a planting of German iris add a little lime and plenty of bone meal or other good fertilizer. That part of the iris plant from which the foliage starts is called the rhizome and is many times mistaken for the root of the plant, as it is usually set too deeply in the soil. It should be so placed that its top surface is even with the surface of the ground. Then the true roots which grow from the rhizome sink deeply into the soil for food. German iris likes good drainage and the planting bed should be high enough to prevent surface water remaining about the plants.

An iris planting, once established, usually does best when left almost entirely alone. It requires very little attention except weeding, and except in dry weather they need very little water. When the bed becomes overcrowded they should be taken up after their flowering season is over, divided and replanted where they have ample room.

Earliest of the iris to bloom in the spring are the dainty little dwarf varieties. They grow from 4 to 12 inches high and are particularly suitable in the rock garden or as an edging in front of taller groups.

For a continuation of iris bloom, there are the intermediate types which were produced by crossing the tall, bearded German varieties with the dwarfs. These are handsome, medium growing hybrids, and their large flowers are available in several interesting color combinations.

The most glorious display of these easy-to-grow flowers is obtained by setting out a generous planting of the German iris, which is next to bloom. Because of its beautiful colors and exquisite flowers it has earned the title of "Rainbow Flower."

and when a border of them are in bloom they truly seem a rainbow brought to earth.

Last of the iris to bloom are the exotic varieties from far-off Japan. Their splendid flowers, so imperially rich in color and pattern, may be secured by setting the plants in even ordinary garden soil, although their delight in swamp conditions. Given rich soil and an abundance of water for several weeks before they bloom, the resultant flowers will be astonishing in size and beauty. Mulch with peat moss to help retain the moisture in the soil.

In every garden there is opportunity for a border or group of lovely iris. Plant them this fall so next summer's garden will be touched with the magic of these delightful "Rainbow Flowers."

WIPPERMAN CLAIMS TAXES ARE TOO HIGH

Milwaukee — (P)—A charge that taxation in Wisconsin is all out of proportion to population was made today by R. O. Wipperman, who conducts a taxpayers' research bureau here, in making public figures claiming to show that the total tax delinquency in the state this year is $21,761,192.

Wipperman presented a tabulation, which he said was compiled from state tax commission records and which shows that delinquent taxes jumped from $3,251,422 in 1920, to $15,263,610 last year and then to the $21 million figure in 1931.

"It is easy enough to explain this year's enormous unpaid tax," he said, "but can we explain the increase from $3,251,093 in 1920 to $15,263,610 in 1930 during practically all of which time our country experienced the greatest prosperity it had ever known?"

"There seems to be one explanation and that is that taxes have increased so utterly out of proportion to population, assessed value of taxable property, and income of the people, that they are actually burdensome."

Screen Stars Hard Up As Stock Of Slogans Runs Low

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright 1931, By Cons. Press
Hollywood — (CPA)—Way things have worked around, the screen stars are pretty hard up nowadays for a slogan. That is, a slogan to attach to their names. You can't be a star unless somebody, not necessarily yourself, tacks a nickname onto you.

There's Charles Buddy Rogers, for example; America's boy friend. There's the Two-Gun Bill Hart of very blessed memory. There's Elissa Landi, empress of emotion.

Also there's "Legs" Dietrich, as Marlene has been called, though of course they likewise called her mysterious Marlene. And Rex Bell, the boy with the million dollar smile.

And Clara Bow, the girl or the Brooklyn bonfire. Mary Pickford is America's sweetheart. Theda Bara used to be the siren of the screen. Dolores Del Rio is the Mexican siren. Greta is the Swedish siren. Nancy Carroll is the New York siren.

You see how it goes. And the stars are beginning to see where it leads. They are running to sirens now for the women stars and to men for the men. Such as he-man Gary Cooper; he-man Warner Baxter; he-man George Bancroft.

ROTARY CLUB MEMBERS TALK OVER BUSINESS

Discuss Various Occupations at Weekly Gathering

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—Short talks concerning their own business affairs formed the basis of the informal program of Rotarians Monday. August Meinhardt discussed the hardware business, comparing business methods of the past and present. Mr. Meinhardt noted his apprenticeship during his boyhood when he worked for three years without other payment than a suit of clothes. Those were, literally, days of hard work, Mr. Meinhardt emphasized.

The next speaker was Dr. Pat Murphy, who reviewed the history of dentistry briefly, pointing out the manner in which tooth aches were cured. When all home remedies failed Dr. Murphy said, the last resort and one of the best favored treatments of those days was by submitting the aching tooth to the hot wire cure. A wire was heated red hot and held against the tooth until the nerve collapsed, the dentist said. A. L. Severance, asked to talk of conditions in farming replied that there is no such business.

"The bank business today," said Mr. Severance, "consists chiefly in trying to collect notes."

F. S. Dayton outlined his plans for the public museum, now nearly complete. He pointed out the uses for and school children to which he hopes the building will be dedicated, and reiterated his hope that the place will come to be a mecca for those historically minded. He is curator of the museum.

HISTORIC CHEST OF TOOLS IS GIVEN TO PUBLIC MUSEUM

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—A chest of tools brought to this city in 1858, six years after the founding of New London, and used in construction of many buildings still standing, is a recent gift to the New London Public museum by Mrs. Flora Mason of this city. The tools belonged to Mrs. Mason's father, a cooper. Perhaps the most interesting is a set of 24 planes used in the various kinds of moulding. A broadax, most formidable in appearance and in perfect condition also is included. Another gift from the same source includes a collection of rare English china and crockery, some of which is known as the Mulberry china of old England.

NEW LONDON BOYS FORM AERIAL CLUB

Members to Meet Once Weekly—First Glider Is Damaged in Accident

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—The first aerial club here has been organized by five New London youths who will meet weekly. A primary glider which was built by one of the members, Gordon Roloff, and which on Sunday received its initial ground test. That the first test was in some degree unsuccessful has not dampened the enthusiasm of the young men.

The glider met with an accident while being towed behind a car. One of the wing tips struck the ground, overturning the glider and damaging the fuselage. This, the club members believe, can be repaired by next Tuesday. There is nothing standing between a successful flight but a small matter of twenty dollars. The boys met at the Roloff home on the Cemetery rd., trying their flight experiments in a pasture nearby. Members of the club include Gordon Roloff, Kenneth Steingraber, Walter Arndt, Alvin Braut and Luther Koenke.

VILLAGE HAS PLAN TO FIGHT FIRES ON FARMS

Towns Would Share Cost of Equipment Under Hortonville Proposal

(Special to Post-Crescent)

Hortonville—At its last meeting the village board here discussed ways and means of reorganizing the local fire department so as to be able to afford fire protection to the farmers in the neighboring townships of Greenville, Dale, Ellington, Liberty and Hortonville. A committee was appointed to take the matter and report later.

This village has long been proud of its modern and efficient fire fighting equipment, which is held in readiness to aid neighbors in distress. In 1923 it was recognized that furnishing fire protection for the rural communities was a rather one-sided arrangement, and a resolution was adopted by the village board, fixing a regular schedule of charges for such services. These charges were based on the miles traveled in fighting the fire, with an additional charge per hour after the first hour spent at the scene. But that resolution was never enforced. Although the department continues to respond to calls for help outside the community, it was only in rare cases that the village was reimbursed for its expense.

Experience has also shown that in most cases the village equipment is not helpful when it arrived at the scene of the fire and could do little because no water was available. The mere presence of men who had been trained to fight fires often resulted in saving considerable property, but the same result could have been attained without subjecting them to added risk of the drive on the fire truck.

It is generally accepted as a fact that such a drive into the country is far more hazardous to fire fighting equipment than runs to a fire within city or village limits. Residents of the village have long felt that they should not be required to bear the entire cost of furnishing fire protection to the surrounding rural communities, subjecting the members of the department to the hazards of these trips and incurring the liability for loss of life or injury to the men and of damage to the equipment. Some of the insurance companies, carrying considerable rural fire insurance, were willing to cooperate to the extent of bearing a portion of the cost of a fire run to premises covered by their policies. Others refused to entertain such a proposition. Some of the farmers were willing to pay, but others took the stand that the village ought to loan them its equipment in case of necessity as a matter of policy and friendship. And there the matter has stood for a long time.

At the last meeting of the village board St. Louis suggested that a chemical fire fighting truck be purchased, equipped with large duplicate tanks and capable of throwing a couple of good sized streams of water. With the tanks so arranged that they could be connected to the hose alternately, a constant stream could be played upon the fire because one tank could be refilled while the other was in action. The cost of this equipment to be borne jointly by the neighboring towns of Greenville, Dale, Ellington, Liberty and Hortonville, while the village would house and maintain the equipment and stand ready to send it a fire anywhere in the district immediately upon receipt of the alarm. It is hoped that the insurance companies can also be persuaded to cooperate in that the total cost for each community would be comparatively small.

It is expected that the committee will have its meeting with the various town boards within the next few days, and after the plans have been discussed with the officials, a general meeting will be called, at which the proposition can be explained to the taxpayers.

$1, $1.50 PAID FOR YOUNG PIGS AT MONTHLY FAIR

Many Farmers Take Stock Back to Farm Rather Than Sell at Low Prices

BY W. F. WINSEY
Pigs from six to ten weeks old sold at $1.50 each on the pig fair grounds here Saturday and some pigs, old enough for fattening, brought from $1.50 to $2.00 each. On account of the low prices which were made early in the day by one or two farmers accepting them a large number left the grounds with their loads for home. One farmer who was headed for his home with his load said "I have a better place for my pigs than the market if the price is only one dollar for animals ten weeks old."

The market place was filled with trucks and trailers loaded with pigs from a circle within a radius of 20 miles about Appleton. The large trucks were those of buyers who came to the fair. One truck was from Whitewater.

On account of the low offers very few sales were made. Some farmers were asking nearly as much for ducks and chickens as other farmers were being offered for their pigs. The poultry sales were few, however.

FEWER PARALYSIS CASES ARE REPORTED

Madison—(P)—Although there were 72 new cases of infantile paralysis in Wisconsin during the week ending Sept. 19, the total represented a reduction of four cases from the number of the preceding week, the state board of health reported today.

The disease was reported from Jackson and Taylor counties for the first time this year. A total of 456 cases have thus far been reported from all but 16 of the 71 counties.

Dr. H. M. Gifford, state epidemiologist, discounted the importance of the recent reduction in the number of cases, pointing out that a heavy increase would not be unexpected.

"Appearance of new cases during October in some years has marked the peak of prevalence of poliomyelitis in Wisconsin," the records show," the board said. "Early occurrence of heavy frost has been observed to coincide with a falling off in the appearance of new cases."

PASTURES REVIVED BY RECENT RAINS

Farmers Now Wondering What to Do With Emergency Hay Crops

BY W. F. WINSEY
Farmers of northeastern Wisconsin on account of a shortage of regular pasture caused by the drouth sowed large acreages of emergency pastures in the form of rye and winter wheat to be used this fall and next spring. The recent rains, however, revived the regular pastures and produced such large vigorous growths and so much feed that the farmers will have no use for their emergency feed this fall.

The rapid change from no feed in permanent and regular pastures to unexpected quantities of it, raises the question among the emergency pasture farmers, "What is to be done with the winter wheat and rye sown?" The winter wheat and rye are growing as rapidly as the regular pastures.

Perhaps no farmer will do anything with his winter wheat or rye this fall except to let it grow. Next spring if he has all the regular pasture he needs, he may do one of three things: raise a grain crop of winter wheat or rye, cut the winter wheat or rye at the right stage for hay; plow the winter wheat or rye under as a green manure. Both of these crops in case of an open winter make very good winter grazing. They are used extensively for this purpose in some of the western states.

SAM
BY FREEMAN LINCOLN

Chapter 23
A FIGHTER AND A GHOST

Sam smiled in spite of himself. "I can't believe that it's quite so bad as all that. You can undoubtedly find something just as good as Fourth's invention to put your money in."

"You don't understand," Eugene shook her head vehemently. "I'd rather have lost every cent than have let this happen."

"What do you mean?"

"What I mean is simple enough. Mr. Aldersea isn't in the book business any more. Not only that, but he has plenty of money." Eugene looked up and Sam was horrified to see that her eyes were filled with tears. "It's the end. I won't be seeing Mr. Aldersea any more."

"Nonsense!" Sam spoke sharply in an attempt to stifle an unreasonable and unwelcome surge of pity. The widow leaned forward with sudden eagerness. "Miss Sherrill, you and I are both sensible people, aren't we?"

"Very well, I suppose we are," Eugene nodded. "We both know what we know. We know, for instance, that I am terribly in love with Mr. Aldersea."

Sam gasped. "We do?" she inquired.

"Yes," Eugene nodded. "We not only know that, but we also know that Mr. Aldersea isn't even slightly interested in me."

"Mrs. Frye!"

"I have no wild ideas about myself," the widow continued calmly. "I know exactly what I am. I'm cheap, and I don't wear good clothes and my voice is bad. I can't even talk the same kind of English he talks."

"Please don't talk like that," Eugene said.

"Why not? It's the truth. Do you mind if I put the cards on the table? I'd like to tell you about myself--if you can stand it."

Sam murmured: "I'd be glad to hear."

"The widow had suddenly become an intensely interesting figure."

"Well," Eugene began briskly. "In the first place, you must know that never in my life has anybody given me anything. Do you understand?"

"I'm afraid I don't."

"Of course you don't." The widow smiled. "You'll see soon enough when I tell you a little bit about my life."

"To begin with, I was the youngest one of six kids. My father worked around the docks and he didn't exactly make what you'd call a lot of money." She laughed. "I wasn't so keen about living eight in three rooms."

"That's understandable enough," Sam nodded gravely.

"Is it?" the widow inquired. "I'm not so sure. The rest of them were satisfied enough. I wanted something better. I was different."

The widow had forgotten Sam altogether. She was staring back through the years at three crowded rooms in some dingy tenement.

"Yes," Eugene went on. "I was different, but I didn't know it. All I knew was that I loved to stand outside theatre watching the nice people going in. I'd look at the women and tell myself that some day I'd have clothes like theirs."

"I've always known what I wanted and I've always fought for it. I fought for Jim Frey. I fought myself from that tenement to where I am now, and I began to think that I hadn't done so badly."

"Really?" Sam was genuinely moved. "You've done wonders!"

"Have I?" Eugene shrugged. "I'll admit that I'd just about decided my fighting days were over. Then, one day, Mr. Aldersea came to my house to sell me a set of books and I knew in five minutes right then and there that I wanted him."

"Really?" Sam almost smiled. "I didn't know that Fourth was so--"

"I know. It sounds foolish somehow, and it's hard to explain. Maybe it was his voice or the things he talked about. Maybe it was just him. Anyhow, there it was. I had to think, so I stalked him off about the books and told him to come back a day later. He went away, and I told myself that I was in for another fight."

"Really?" Sam repeated weakly. "Yes, I said to myself, 'Eugenie Frye, there's no use for thinking romantic nonsense about this business, because a man like him won't fall in love with you. What have you got that you can fight with?' Money was the answer. I had a lot of money and Mr. Aldersea didn't have much or he wouldn't be selling books. Maybe I could persuade him to put up with me for the sake of my money. Then I could begin to try to make him like me a little bit."

Sam was so dazed by this amazing frank recital that she was able only to murmur a feeble: "I see."

Eugenie nodded. "Well, I bought books from him, and I lent him money. I tried to put in his head what was in my head." She sighed. "I think I was succeeding and then, all of a sudden he stopped coming to see me. You tell me that he has made money. That is a blow, because if he's made money he'll never give me another thought. He's taken away the only thing I had to fight with." She turned suddenly and stared intently at Sam. "Do you see why I've been acting like such an idiot since I told me about that invention thing?"

"I think so," Sam nodded slowly. "I'm terribly sorry."

"Don't be sorry for me," the widow sat up very straight, a grim determined figure. "I'm not sorry for myself, and I'm not through. I'm not beaten yet!"

"I said it was all over when you first gave me the news. I'm ready to start again now. I don't know how I'm going to fight, or what I'm going to find to fight with--but I warn you, I'll find something. I've got to! There's a reason."

"A reason?"

"Yes," said Eugene with a certain simple dignity. "The reason is I'm in love with your stepfather." She laughed grimly. "I'm in love and I can't get out. It's something that's got hold of me and won't let go." She made an expressive, twisting gesture with her clenched hand. "It sort of grabs and hurts inside--like that. Know what I mean?"

Sam nodded. "Yes," she said gravely. "I think I know."

People said, that spring that Sam was forgetting. They meant, of course, that she was forgetting about Nelson and his marriage to a fifteen dollar-a-week domestic servant whose father was reputed to be an unenterprising retailer of fresh fish.

No one had the slightest doubt that Sam was genuinely happy. It stood out all over her. She no longer gave the impression of being a person apart, self-sufficient, faintly on the defensive. She went everywhere, and she obviously enjoyed herself.

The night at the Ritz proved to be, as the weeks went on, no more than a beginning. Sam's mood did not wane. Instead, it remained, flourished, and grew.

Peak, although delighted, was definitely wary at first. He watched Sam closely. Sam's air of grave formality and her long silences in his presence had disappeared. She talked with him constantly now; talked with him intimately and without reservation. She gave no verbal assurance of love, to be sure, but otherwise, Peak told himself savagely, she talked exactly as a woman might talk with her husband.

It was all very difficult. At times, when she looked up at him suddenly, with that deep, almost purple light in her blue eyes, it took all his strength to keep from seizing her in his arms. Only a will that had become strong through constant exercise prevented him from giving way to these temptations. He was grimly determined that he should never give way--never, at least, until he was absolutely sure that the ghost of Freddy Munson had been finally and definitely laid to rest.

Temptation attacks Peak more strongly tomorrow, and he fights a sudden, sharp battle.

OUTAGAMIE-CO OIL COMPANY WELL NOW AT 350-FOOT LEVEL

Drilling Stopped for Necessary Piping as Shale Is Struck

BY W. F. WINSEY

Black Creek — The new oil well at De Prey's Corners, town of Cicero, in now down to the depth of 350 feet. The drilling was stopped, however, when shale was struck at that depth, until the piping necessary for drilling in that kind of rock could be obtained. It is expected that operations will be resumed next Thursday. Water has risen in the well since the drilling started to within 10 feet of the surface. The piping will be necessary also to close the veins of water. At several levels pockets of natural gas and oil were tapped by the drill and these caused much excitement.

Below the surface pockets, veins of natural gas and oil will be opened, according to the surveys of experts at depths of 750 feet, 1,275, and 1,800 feet. It is expected that the well will begin to blow at the 750-foot level. The directors are prepared to sink the bore 3,000 feet if necessary.

The well now being drilled is the second one. The first was discontinued when several pockets of natural gas and oil were opened because, according to the president of the company, it was feared that a possible gusher might increase the fire hazard of private buildings. The present well is about 300 feet distant from the building.

As soon as the first big vein of oil or natural gas is tapped, the oil company expects to incorporate. Twenty-five is the limit placed on the number of stockholders. There are 21 stockholders at present and the balance, will be selected in a short time. To protect the company's interests 7,000 acres of farm lands about the well have been leased.

Large numbers of people, stop daily at De Prey's Corners to make inquiries and personal investigations. The officers of the company are John De Prey, president; H. C. Halida, vice-president; and Dr. C. Runge secretary-treasurer.

TRUCK CROPS ARE LOWER IN STATE

Cucumbers for Pickles Only Type That Is Giving Normal Yield

Madison—(P)—With the exception of cucumbers for pickles, truck crops in Wisconsin are making lower yields than usual this year, the U. S. and Wisconsin departments of agriculture reported here.

Cucumber yield is estimated at 62 bushels per acre as compared with 58 bushels in 1930. A decrease in average of 21 per cent, however, will bring the total production down to 630,000 bushels from 1,102,000 bushels produced last year.

Excessive heat, dry weather and worm damage was disastrous to the cabbage crop. The acreage is 27 per cent below that of last year and the estimated production will be 108,400 tons as compared with 207,800 tons last year. Kraut cabbage is expected to make a 30 per cent lower yield per acre and with a reduction of 25 per cent in acreage the production is now estimated at 33,000 tons as compared with 64,800 tons last year.

Wisconsin beats for canning were 48 per cent of normal or five points below the August 1 condition and 18 points below the September, 1930 condition. Sweet corn, with the same acreage as last year, will total about 19,500 tons as compared with 31,200 tons last year. The total production for the nation shows an increase of 11 per cent despite a seven per cent reduction in acreage.

mated at 218,000 bushels or 17 per cent less than the 1930 crop. Snap beans for manufacture are expected to make a production of 6,000 tons which is 23 per cent below last year's harvest.

Babies GAIN when bowels are strong, regular!

BABY isn't gaining his six or eight ounces a week? Constipation may be the reason. It is behind most of a baby's troubles. Colic. Fretfulness. Gas. It keeps Baby from accepting or retaining the proper amount of food.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. It is a prescription for the bowels written by a famous doctor—one who attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby—a record believed unique in American medical history.

Half a teaspoonful of this simple prescription often relieves occasional troubles like that in a few hours. If Baby is bottle-fed or for any other reason is regularly constipated, give half a teaspoonful daily until the little fellow is happy, gaining as he should.

CHURCH TAKES NO ACTION ON DRY LAW ISSUE

Episcopalians Decide Question Too Highly Controversial in Nature

Denver—(P)—The house of bishops and house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church have agreed today that there is a wide difference of opinion as to the wisdom and desirability of retaining the eighteenth amendment in its present form.

They also were agreed that there is a widespread difference of opinion as to the wisdom and desirability of retaining the church's marriage and divorce canon in its present form.

On the prohibition question, they decided to do nothing because of the highly controversial issues involved. On the matrimonial question they hoped to effect a compromise.

The section on the prohibition question passed by a vote of 12 to 10, with the committee of twenty-one on industrial dislocation, world peace and adoption and lawlessness, was adopted by the house of bishops last Friday. The deputies concurred yesterday.

There was no debate on the assertion that there is a difference of opinion about the dry laws in the nation, within the church and among members of the convention.

The report set forth that enforcement of the prohibition law "has been accompanied by graft, corruption, lawlessness, murder and political cowardice and hypocrisy."

The matrimonial issue was considered last night by a conference committee composed of representatives of the house of bishops and the house of deputies. The results were expected to be announced in both houses today.

Two Measures Rejected
The committee was named after the house of bishops had rejected two proposed canons from the house of deputies and the deputies had refused to concur on two substitutes offered by the bishops.

Differences of opinion were largely technical. The deputies favor mandatory ecclesiastical courts to consider matrimonial cases. The bishops would leave establishment of such courts to the discretion of the diocese and provide for operation of the courts through the bishops.

The bishops demand that at least one party to a marriage must have been baptized. This requirement is not necessary in the eyes of the deputies. The deputies list the existence of venereal disease as an impediment to marriage and a cause for annulment in cases before the ecclesiastical courts. The house of bishops eliminated this from the ground that it is difficult to determine the existence of such diseases.

Both bishops and deputies would restore divorced persons who have been remarried by a civil authority to all communicant rights, under a favorable decision from an ecclesiastical court.

There was no debate on the section of the report which recommended that the United States enter the world court.

Chief difference of opinion was over the section regarding industrial dislocation. George W. Wickham, former U. S. attorney general, contended that several statements in the report smacked of the philosophy of Soviet Russia. He led an unsuccessful attempt to delete certain sections.

The house of bishops selected Atlantic City as the site for the 1934 general convention. The deputies rejected the New Jersey City and voted for Minneapolis, Cleveland, and another bidder, appeared as a likely compromise.

New York—(P)—The Moto Meter Gauge & Equipment Corp. is spending $1,000,000 in re-tooling its Toledo, Ohio, plant for the manufacture of a new temperature gauge. The plant which has been operating three days has been operating months, was placed on a five-day week basis this week.

Stockholders of the Brunswick-Balke-Clender Co. have approved retention of the capital so that $11,250,000, or $25 a share, will be set up as capital applicable to common shares. The difference between the former and the reduced capital is to be used to pay for preferred dividends, should earnings or earned surplus not be sufficient.

Sims Petroleum Co., has called a special meeting of stockholders for Oct. 13 to consider the advisability of the purchase by the company of not exceeding 100,000 shares of the company's capital stock at an average price of not exceeding $6 a share. If the proposal is approved each stockholder of record Oct. 15 will have the right to sell to the company up to the close of business Nov. 13 up to 12 1/2 per cent of his stock at $6 a share. In case the purchase of 100,000 shares is not purchased, the deficiency may be made up by purchases in the open market.

BUTCHERS SCARCE ON LIVESTOCK MART

Light Hogs and Pigs Dominate Supply of 23,000 Head

Chicago—(P)—With light hogs and pigs dominating the supply of 23,000, of which 3,000 went direct to slaughter plants, weighty butchers were wanted. They were very scarce and were held at steady prices, while bids and considerable early selling ranged 5.10c lower. Light hogs to the number of 8,000 were carried over unsold from Monday's market giving buyers the edge in the early trading. Butchers weighing around 250 lbs were bought at 5.45-5.50, while heavier ones were held above these figures and light butchers went to local and outside buyers at 5.25-5.40.

Moderate receipts of cattle running largely to plain native steers and butchers' stock met with an indifferent demand. Only strictly choice steers appealed to early buyers, these being sought for eastern killers. Country shippers have responded to the improved tone in the calf market by materially increasing receipts during the first two days of the week.

What appeared to be a small shrinkage in live mutton receipts was really a more serious affair from the standpoint of buyers of high grade lambs, which have been in brisk demand. The supply of 22,000 carried some direct to packers and were almost devoid of strictly choice fat lambs. Early quotations were nominally steady.

GRAIN MARKET AS UNSTEADY AS SECURITIES

Fickleness of Wall Street Helps Unhinging of Cereal Prices

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago

Wall Street securities did much to unhinge the grain markets today, and bring about material setbacks. The world's available wheat supply increased 5,055,000 bushels for the week, and is now 435,768,000 bushels, against 423,699,000 a year ago. European demand was meager, with purchases of only 250,000 bushels, exclusively Canadian.

Russia was reported to have slashed her export wheat prices 23 cents a bushel. Advice to hold of stop loss selling by wheat holders at Liverpool, where the market to date closed 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 pence lower. Assertions by a British authority that the full effect of suspension of the gold standard has been witnessed apparently were ignored.

Corn price downturns resulted largely from favorable weather for field work, and from increased bookings of corn to arrive in Chicago. Besides, today's receipts here were liberal, 10 cars compared with 95 a week ago and 73 on the corresponding day last year. December corn, representing the new crop, fell at one stage to 35 1/2 cents a bushel, more than a full cent drop from the opening quotations. Oats followed corn.

Provisions advanced, owing to scattered buying despite downturns in hog values.

FORMER BADGER IS PRAISED IN FARM MAGAZINE

Economist With Federal Farm Board Lived in Jefferson-co

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Dr. John B. Black, the Jefferson-co man who has just become chief economist of the federal farm board, is highly praised by Gov. Sam McKelvie of Nebraska, former member of the farm board, in his weekly, the Nebraska farmer.

Says Gov. McKelvie: "Dr. John B. Black comes to the board from Harvard university, where he has been chief economist for many years. He is a native of Wisconsin. Among economists and students of economics, he is widely and favorably known."

"He has given special study to agricultural economics and among other things, proposed the plan for the domestic allotment of wheat production. While this plan is not so well known to the public, it has been commented upon freely and favorably in many quarters. Among the many proposals that have been made for securing a domestic price above the world price to the grower, it has many features that seem most logical. Whether it would work out in practice would be determined perhaps only from experience."

"Suffice to say, Dr. Black is intensely interested in the economic program of agriculture and it may be safely forecast that his services to the board and to this industry will be of outstanding value."

"Dr. Black was educated at the University of Wisconsin, getting his bachelor's master's and doctor's degrees there."

Wisconsin Indians, as well as the state's more recent inhabitants of white color, are interested in conserving the summer food supply of vegetables and fruits for winter use, according to information sent to the president's organization for unemployment relief.

In addition to the vegetable gardens planted in communities surrounding industrial centers, the information received says:

"On our Indian reservations the Indians have taken a greater interest than ever before in planting gardens with many varieties of vegetables. These gardens range from an eighth of an acre to about two acres in size."

"But what do the Wisconsin vegetable canners who want to sell their product during the winter think of this plan?"

President Hoover says Uncle Sam is spending $9,818,000 on construction projects in Wisconsin this year, will spend $3,481,000 in the first six months of 1932, and spent $5,648,000 last year.

This is divided as follows: Buildings and lands (there the total limit of cost of each project is apparently included, although there were appreciable savings on some Wisconsin public buildings), $1,000,000 in 1930, $1,693,000 in 1931, and $1,192,

Makes Charges

Chicago prosecutors denied charges made by Theodore W. Miller, above, until recently an assistant state's attorney, who declared that he was ousted because he had led a raid on an Al Capone vice den. He declared Capone was all-powerful in the state's attorney's office.

000 in the first half of 1932; construction other than public buildings and rivers and harbors engineering work, $402,000 in 1930, $151,000 in 1931, and $111,000 in the first half of 1932; engineer corps, $1,407,000 in 1930, $1,039,000 in 1931, and $200,000 in the first half of next year (apparently all three years include part of the work on the upper Mississippi river); repairs and maintenance, $781,000 last year, $507,000 this year, $278,000 in the first half of next year federal aid to roads $3,053,900 last year, $6,378,000 this year, and $1,700,000 in the first half of next year; no drought relief funds.

Wisconsin led all the states in the road mileage surfaced last year, completing 1,825 miles. It is now fifth among the states in the total mileage surfaced by the end of last year, its 9,365 miles of highways being outstripped by Ohio's 11,254 miles, New York's 11,244 miles; Texas, 10,808 miles, and Pennsylvania's 9,495 miles.

Furthermore, $7,420,441 worth of state highway construction contracts was awarded by Wisconsin in August, according to information given out by the president's organization for unemployment relief.

Other public works contracts recently awarded in Wisconsin, according to the president's organization, include:

Racine-co improving Green Bay road, $28,000; Green Bay, school addition, $150,000; Milwaukee, alterations and addition to city auditorium, $45,000; Waukesha, dredging work, $15,570; Kimberly, village fire hall and fire station, $30,000.

The depression cut down the per capita consumption of ice cream, an important Wisconsin industry, last year, but the lower prices of other dairy products increased the per capita production of butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk, according to the federal bureau of agriculture economics.

The average citizen consumed 17.75 pounds of butter last year as against 17.61 in 1930; 4.71 pounds of cheese against 4.62 pounds in 1930; 16.61 pounds of condensed and evaporated milk as against 16.58 pounds; but

RISK FIRMS TO SEEK SIGNS OF GOOD BUSINESS

Representatives to Make Survey of Middle West Territory

(Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)

Kansas City, Mo. —(CFA) — Coming into the interior this month are investigators for eastern insurance companies, savings banks and other institutions interested in the progress of the rural area and the possibility of a recovery in business. Several conferences have been held the past two weeks with western representatives of the concerns and reports received of conditions.

Largely the interest has centered in the ability of the rural debtor to meet his obligations coming due in the next few months or delayed from last summer.

Generally the situation has been found fairly stable where loaning agencies have been cautious in valuations. The volume of farm foreclosures has only slightly increased over last year, though the number of deeds given where ability to meet payments is evident are more numerous. The intense effort being made to reduce expenses is having some helpful effect where the margin in lack of funds is small.

On the whole, with a small upturn in wheat and better oil prices, the first month of fall has perhaps shown gain, but much more is needed to present any marked improvement in business. Some of the betterment in grain prices is probably due to the widespread holding policy of producers. How extended this is commences to be realized. In Kansas, for instance, with its record yield of 23,000,000 bushels, it is estimated there is yet unsold either in granaries on farms or in storage subject to farmers' orders, practically as much as its five-year average crop, 166,000,000 bushels. Most of this will go to market before next spring, and any material advance will be a distinct impetus to buying and debt-paying power.

Doubt surrounds the holding policy of the producers, so far as its effect on wheat prices is concerned. Apparently a flood of grain will be sent to market at the time when light receipts are usual and it may further upset any later

John J. Esch of La Crosse, former member of the Interstate Commerce commission and former congressman presided over the second annual convention of the Association of Practitioners before the Interstate Commerce commission held at the Mayflower hotel here Thursday and Friday. Judge Esch is president of the association. The members were received by President Hoover Friday.

PLANE TO BEAT HAWKS

Rome — General Italo Balbo, Italian Air Minister, has a new airplane which was built in the United States and which, it is said, will beat the plane Capt. Frank Hawks used to break many European records. It is said that Gen. Balbo's plane will do 20 miles an hour more than that of Capt. Hawks'.

SEE HUGE DECREASE IN SHIPMENTS OF GRAIN VIA LAKES

Only Two Months of Season Left With Little Demand from East

Superior —(AP)— With about two more months of navigation on the Great Lakes and a continued lack of demand from eastern mills and exporters, indications point to a sub-normal movement of grain from the head of the Lakes for the 1931 navigation season.

With the peak of the grain movement for the 1931 season passed, shipments from the Twin Ports are in the neighborhood of 33,000,000 bushels, an enormous decrease over previous seasons, and lower than last year when the grain business was below normal.

The 1930 shipment of grain from Duluth was approximately 87,000,000 bushels, figures at the Duluth Board of Trade reveal, with wheat, as in previous seasons, being the leading grain shipped. This season's shipments, indications now are, will not reach the 1930 movement, which showed a decrease of nearly 10 million bushels under 1929 and a large decrease under previous seasons. Shipments of 100,000,000 bushels and more were common at the head of the Lakes in previous years.

Wheat leads all grain shipments this season, there being more than 25,000,000 bushels sent down the lakes. Oats is second with shipments of around 3,000,000 bushels; corn, third with nearly that amount; barley, fourth with about 1,500,000 bushels; flax, about a million bushels, while the rye shipment has been decidedly light.

In comparison to other years, receipts also have been light with the total thus far this year reaching in the neighborhood of 35,000,000 bushels. The bulk of the incoming grain was intact.

With the elevators at the Twin Ports having approximately 31,000, 000 bushels of grain stored, local grain men again anticipate heavy storage for the winter unless unforeseen events occur between now and the close of navigation. Receipts between now and the close of navigation will average around 200,000 bushels or less daily.

Most of the wheat stored here is government owned and it is expected the farm board agencies will keep moving wheat until the navigation season closes late in November.

Calgary, Alberta—A well known Calgary minister is taking the law into his own hands and is making this city a tough pasture for criminals. Two thieves recently made an attempt to steal some tools out of the minister's car. Spying them from a room in his home, the minister ran out of the house in his shirt sleeves and very undignified-like pursued the thieves. He came here from Chicago, where he had three different encounters with gangsters.
